Learn from Danny.
How Rich We Might Be.
The Baby's Ears.
Why Not Dwight Morrow.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.)

FATHERS and sons, learn something from Danny McMahon. His father, one of the Tammany "Big Three," Murphy, Haffen and McMahon, gave his son a good education, died and left him $250,000. Now Danny, only thirty-six years old, having spent his money being a "good fellow," dies in Bellevue Hospital, New York, penniless, no friend with him.

To leave your son money, without having taught him how to use it, is to make Misery your executor.

Fire burns more than $550,000,000 a year in this country. This loss is $5.02 per capita for the United States against 72 cents in Britain, 49 cents in France, 28 cents in Germany, 25 cents in Italy, 11 cents in Holland, etc.

Yesterday United States District-Attorney Tuttle said, "The cost of crime is ten billions a year, according to the National Surety Company survey, 'fences,' receivers of stolen goods, alone take in three thousand million dollars' worth of private property."

How rich should we Americans be, if we were all careful, intelligent and honest?

Mrs. Smith had a baby in a Cleveland hospital. She and her husband said it was a boy, when they gave her a girl baby to nurse.

The father says: "They can keep that girl, so far as I am concerned, unless they prove it is mine." Something of a prejudice against girl babies in that, perhaps.

One proof offered is that the girl baby's ears are exactly like those of the mother. That is most important. Human ears and the "Darwinian tubercle" that sometimes goes with them are often inherited from generation to generation, and prove heredity at a glance.

Anyhow, ANY girl baby will repay richly any one that takes care of her.

Some Senators oppose Dwight W. Morrow as Minister to Mexico. Why? Mr. Morrow is able, intelligent, has made his own career.

No Senator can question his honesty. He was Mr. Coolidge's classmate at Amherst, and his nomination is based on long acquaintance.

No one objected when President Harding selected Mr. Mellon, whom Harding described to this writer before he appointed him as "the second richest man in the world." It was fortunate that "the second richest man in the world" was willing to look after Uncle Sam's finances.

Mr. Morrow, who has resigned from the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.—a step not at all necessary—is well fitted for the work that the President gives him. He understands finance, international relationships, and this country is interested in Mexico's prosperity, success and friendship.

On all sides are evidences of increasing business activity, says Mr. Hoover, Secretary of Com-

Edinburgh, Scotland, Sept. 22 (A.P.)—Notification that a divorce action by Constance Talmadge against Captain Alastair William Mackintosh will be heard by Lord Fleming was given in general sessions here today.

The date of the hearing was not announced.

The first rumors of a rift in the second matrimonial lots of "Connie" Talmadge were wafted about moving picture circles in the Fall of 1926. At that time the vivacious screen comedienne denied vigorously that she was to cast off her English husband, but in October of that year she admitted that an amicable separation had been agreed upon.

From time to time thereafter the gossips were busy with the divorce

DEMPSEY MONEY FLOODS CHICAGO

Chicago, Sept. 22 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey tipped the beam at 192½ pounds this afternoon when he weighed in officially before the State Athletic Commission for tonight's ten-round battle with Gene Tunney.

This was nearly four pounds less than the experts figured the ex-champion would scale and was accepted as an indication of excellent condition.

Tunney weighed 189½ pounds.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—A seemingly limitless flood of Dempsey money suddenly inundated this fight-mad city this afternoon, practically all of it offered at even money on "Tiger Jack" to whip the ex-Marine.

As sport circles were turned topsy-turvy by this rush of eleventh-hour betters, the two fighters, taking leave of their training camps, sped into town in automobiles heavily guarded by flying squadrons of police who cut a way through traffic with a continual wild clamor of sirens.

DEMPSEY IS FLATLEY'S CHOICE TO WIN TONIGHT

By NICK FLATLEY.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 22.—Jack Dempsey should be champion of the world again when midnight tolls above the wild din of a fight-mad Chicago.

It looks like a comeback, as the real estater remarked when the bank returned his check.

Jack Dempsey, who was felled a day less than a year ago by Gene Tunney, will probably smack that same Gene out of the picture, this evening before the biggest and richest crowd that ever saw a prize fight on this side of the pond.

Tunney, the champion, is a better man than the boxer who jabbed and hooked his way to a soft title one year ago. He's husky, fast, supremely confident. He thinks he's there, and in his courageous heart believes that he can lick a dozen Dempseys.

DEMPSEY 10-8 FAVORITE IN BOSTON

A sensational shift in betting on the big fight was noted in Boston today. The odds which up to noon had been 6 to 5 on Tunney suddenly changed to 10 to 8 on Dempsey and the biggest gamblers in Boston rushed to place their bankrolls on the ex-champion at these odds.

THE DEADLY RABBIT PUNCH AT BASE OF SKULL

BIG QUESTION OF FIGHT: HIS LEGS?
Can Dempsey's underpinning—admittedly "weak"—stand the frightful strain while Tunney is pounding away at the rest of the massive body? That is the question which will be answered tonight. Fight experts see Tunney's chief hope in Dempsey's leg weakness.

WHAT TUNNEY MUST GUARD FROM FOE
Usually the knockout is to the "button" of the jaw—midway between the chin and the jaw angle, the force rattling against the brain and causing concussion. The uppercut is comparatively out of date though used frequently in the bare knuckle days.

HERE'S THE HAUNT OF THE K. O., TOO
The solar plexus is a network of nerves and ganglia behind the stomach and in front of the aorta and crura. A blow there or to a part of the abdomen that crushes the organs against the solar plexus will cause loss of mind or reflex action on the nerves that run to the centre of the brain.

BLOW THAT MAY CAUSE DEATH
The "rabbit punch" at the base of the skull may result in hemorrhages that prove fatal because it is a blow directly over the vital part of the brain—the medulla, in which are merged all the vital centres of life. This blow seldom is struck, and then usually by chance rather than design.

SPAFFORD NEW LEGION HEAD; HUB SEEKS MEET IN 1930

ing Corps before the United States entered the war and then with the A. E. F., was elected chaplain.

The election of Spafford came after a long, tedious debate, during which 45 resolutions presented by committees had been discussed and adopted or rejected.

The last resolution, adopted amid the cheers of the delegates, was a message of greeting to Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, sick at his Cleveland home, expressing regret at his indisposition and wishing for him a speedy and complete recovery.

The resolutions adopted ranged from a stand for child welfare to suggestions to the United States government that the 5-5-3 ratio of naval forces should be maintained.

The convention finally adjourned at 3:47.

Brigadier-General William Mitchell, undaunted by his failure yesterday to have the Legion adopt a resolution calling for the immediate creation of a separate department of aviation, with a Cabinet secretary, made another shot at his project today and succeeded in having a resolution calling for the creation of such a department "as soon as possible" adopted.

MITCHELL SCORES POINT.

When the Legion aeronautic committee, of which General Mitchell is chairman, made its report today its resolution favored a separate department of aviation, declaring that the situation now warranted such a department.

This prompted the question whether the aeronautic report was not covering the same ground as that of yesterday. To this General Mitchell replied frankly:

"Yes. The tendency of this resolution is in fact to override our action of yesterday which I think was taken hastily."

An amendment inserting the words "as soon as warranted" then was introduced, but finally a compromise was agreed upon whereby the words "as soon as possible" were used and the report in this fashion was adopted.

Another question which stirred discussion, some of it sharp, was over the work of the Legion welfare committee, the allegation being made that $29,000 was spent to distribute $21,000 to children. This report was tabled.

A proposal to increase Legion dues 25 cents a year to put the American Legion Monthly on its feet was adopted. Boston delegates today urged the selection of the Hub for the 1930 convention.

The Bostonians insisted that their city had the best claim for that year since it was the city's tercentenary.

CALIFORNIA GETS PRIZE.

California was awarded first prize for the greatest number of miles traveled to reach this convention.

Count De Jean of the French Foreign Office, who arranged for the reception of the legionnaires and their families in France, was awarded the distinguished service medal of the legion by unanimous vote amid applause.

The convention enthusiastically approved the boy scout movement on a resolution by the committee on Americanism. It also adopted resolutions recommending that progress in aviation be favored in every way possible by the legion.

Spafford First Navy Man to Command Legion

New York, Sept. 21 (A.P.)—Edward Elwell Spafford, who was elected today national commander of the American Legion at its Paris convention, is the first navy man to head the veterans' organization.

Spafford is attached to the law firm of Fischer & Strechan of this city. He graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy with honors and rose to the rank of lieutenant commander, but resigned his commission in 1914. At the outbreak of the war here he entered the service and commanded a destroyer overseas. His record won for him the distinguished service medal.

Spafford became commander of the New York State Department of the American Legion in 1922 and held that office for one year. Subsequently he served as chairman of the national naval affairs committee and in 1924 met Senator Borah in a debate over the then pending soldiers' bonus legislation.

Spafford was born in Springfield, Vt., in 1878. His war record shows he was in command of a destroyer which torpedoed and sank a German U-boat in the Strait of Otranto, in the Mediterranean Sea.

His ante-war record reveals a citation for having saved the life of a member of the crew of the old cruiser Washington, now the Seattle, after the man had fallen overboard during a gale off Cape Hatteras.

New Hampshire Woman Is Elected Auxiliary Head

Paris, Sept. 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Irene McIntyre Walbridge of Peterboro, N. H., today was elected national president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

The vote for Mrs. Walbridge was officially announced as 333 to 251 for Mrs. Boyce Ficklin, Jr., of Washington, Ga., for whom the South voted for solidly on the first ballot.

Mrs. Bessie Stewart Smith of Chicago was elected vice-president for the central division.

Boston's share of the total is 117, 23 of which occurred during the present month.

AUTOIST AMAZES JUDGE; RETRACTS "GUILTY" PLEA

Expressing amazement over the fact that a man could plead guilty to charges of driving an automobile under the influence of liquor and drunkenness at one hearing and a few days later assert in court he never took a drink in his life, Judge Counihan, in East Cambridge Court today, fined John C. J. Donahue of Station 12 today.

The would-be assassin made his escape, but Donahue believes one bullet from his service revolver found its mark, and an arrest is expected shortly.

Having finished his tour of duty, Donahue was standing at Broadway and Dorchester street, awaiting a trolley car when an automobile appeared, traveling toward City Point. As it neared the policeman, the car slowed down and its occupant fired one shot point blank at Donahue.

The bullet missed its target, and without stopping for a second shot the motorist speeded away.

Donahue commandeered a taxicab and the chase began. It led along Broadway to East Third street, to H street and I street, where the policeman, leaning out of the taxi, fired three shots at the quarry. The racing autoist failed to even slow down, and the chase continued to L street and Third, where Donahue emptied his revolver of its two remaining shots. Despite the fact the officer believes the autoist was wounded, the superior speed of the coupe permitted its driver to escape.

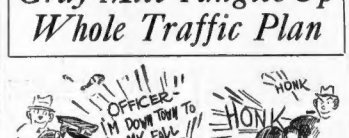
Gray Mite Tangles Up Whole Traffic Plan



The traffic of a big city, controlled by trained policemen, was disrupted today at Boston's busiest corner by one lonely small gray squirrel.

Streams of automobiles were rolling by the corner of Washington, Summer and Winter streets when the squirrel popped up in the midst of it as though materializing out of thin air.

Brakes shrieked, horns blared, and drivers exchanged amenities while the tiny cause of all the trouble sat up on its haunches and calmly took observations.

Traffic came to a standstill while the police on duty, unaware of the cause of the block, waved their arms violently and blew their whistles until their eyes popped.

The squirrel blinked its shoe-button eyes at the shouting and tumult, apparently amazed. Then before anyone could seize it the little animal leaped down Washington street with a score of pedestrians behind in full cry.

Traffic Officer Henry McManus, on duty at Washington and School streets, hearing the pack give tongue, prepared to repel boarders. Then he discovered the squirrel in the van, and attempted to surround it. The squirrel apparently thought it was a new game, and entered gamely into the pastime. Several citizens went to the assistance of Officer McManus, and the assembled multitude was then treated to the spectacle of half a dozen full-grown men playing hide and seek with a squirrel.

By the time the hunters were gasping for breath and dripping with perspiration, the squirrel tired of the game, and flitted up School street, evidently bound for the Old Granary Burying Ground and home.

pant of a camp a few hundred fee away.

Mrs. Southmade, awakened b the glare of flames, saw three men run into the woods from th direction of the burning camp an disappear.

The fire alarm was sounded, bring ing Wilmington apparatus, but th flimsy camp burned so rapidly tha it was leveled in a short time.

Searching through the ashes a as a result of Mrs. Southmade's story the police and firemen found Fog arty's body.

A few hours later, Chief Hill an his men picked up the four men under arrest.

District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell, apprised of the mysterious circumstances attending the fire detailed State Officer Edward O'Neil on the investigation, and with him went State Officer Everett Shumway, attached to th State Fire Marshal's office.

Tentative identification of th body as that of John Fogarty was made when camp neighbors said th burned cottage was occupied by a man named Fogarty of East Boston.

East Boston police were communicated with and visited the house a No. 129 Eutaw street, only to find that the Fogarty family there, with the exception of the only son, John, were on vacation at Pinehurst Park, Billerica.

A further check disclosed that John Fogarty was employed as a time clerk at the Atlantic Works shipbuilding plant, East Boston, but that he had not reported for work today nor had any notification been given his employers that he would be absent.

According to S. L. Franks, chief timekeeper at the works, this was a most unusual occurrence. Also Franks said, he knew that Fogarty had a camp with some other men at Silver Lake, Wilmington.

Fogarty, according to Franks, was at work yesterday and left the plant at 5 p. m., his usual time.

In the Fogarty family, in addition to John, are the father, Ambrose Fogarty, employed at the Custom House; Mrs. Fogarty, the mother, and three sisters, Irene and Claire, telephone operators, and Mary Fogarty.

LILLIENDAHL BOY SAYS DAD AND MOTHER FOUGHT

Hammonton, N. J., Sept. 22 (A.P.)—Detectives made public today the Alfred Lilliendahl, eight-year-old son of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl, murdered near here a week ago, has told them that his father and mother often had quarreled.

"My mother often came to my bedside at night," the boy is said to have told detectives, "and when she knelt down beside me I could see that she had been crying. She would get in bed with me and sleep there all night. I would ask her what was the matter and she would say that she and Daddy had been quarreling."

HUNGRY RUNAWAY BOY IS FOUND IN QUINCY

Hungry, bareheaded and scantily clad, a boy who gave his name as Charles Holnski, No. 216 North Bank street, New London, Conn., was hailed on Hancock street, Quincy, by Patrolman John O'Brien. The boy's teeth chattered, so the policeman took him to the police station.

"On my way to visit a cousin in Rhode Island, I hopped a freight," the boy declared. "But the freight didn't stop until it got to Quincy, so I started walking back."

The New London police have been asked to notify the boy's family of his whereabouts.

TUNNEY MUST SWAP BLOWS, JACK WARNS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—"Gene Tunney is the heavyweight champion of the world and he will have to fight when he steps into the ring tonight. People aren't paying $3,000,000 to see a pleasant little boxing match.

"He will fight me blow for blow and not back into a corner as he did in Philadelphia. This will be an offensive battle, not a defensive one," said Jack Dempsey, in his last interview before the fight.

I had motored to Lincoln Fields with Estelle Taylor, his wife, for her final goodbye, and an early supper with Jack, before he went into retirement at the Morrison Hotel to get ready for the battle.

Jack had promised me in Hollywood that he would give me the last word—you see I am a woman, as well as a reporter, and this little chat was in accordance with our agreement.

Estelle, dressed in a symphony of greens, dined quietly at the Dempsey training quarters on a meal supervised by Mrs. Lee Flynn. Mrs. Flynn made the tea, bought the supplies and otherwise lent her watchful eye to their preparation lest anything not good for prizefighters should creep into the last dinner before the fight.

The nervous strain of these last hours before the fight are agonizing.

MANTIR TO GO TO GREECE IF PARDONED

After spending about eighteen years behind prison bars, constantly protesting his innocence, James Mantir, who with Peter Delorey, pleaded in 1912, was convicted of the brutal slaying of Annie Mullins, in Arlington in 1908, today stands upon the threshold of freedom.

It has been learned exclusively by the Boston Evening American that legal steps have been taken to gain the freedom of the famous lifer, and that the necessary petition for parole is now before Governor Fuller.

The Governor will take the petition up with his council at its next meeting, which will be held in two weeks, it has been learned.

It has also been learned that several members of the Massachusetts Parole Board will appear in favor of the petition, and it is reported that Governor Fuller favors the release of Mantir.

According to John Stratis and the Rev. Eugene Petoulles of the Greek Orthodox Church, both of whom have worked for years for the release of Mantir, one of the conditions is that the lifer will leave the country.

Mantir is at present confined at the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Bridgewater where he was taken from Charlestown State prison a few years after he had been found guilty of the murder of the Arlington girl.

The murder of Annie Mullins was one of the most brutal on record in

BOTH SIAMESE TWINS BEAT OFF 'FLU'

Holyoke, Sept. 22.—The Siamese twins have won their battle for life and health, Dr. A. P. Bragg declared today, after Margaret Gibbs, who had caught a touch of influenza from her sister, Mary, showed definite signs of improvement.

"Both girls are still weak and it will be several days before they will be able to sit up," the doctor said.

The little fiends of influenza that had almost taken Mary's life, threatening to leave her sister joined helplessly to a corpse, had moved into Margaret's throat as Mary emerged from danger.

The terror that had pursued Margaret had taken lodging in Mary's tender heart.

"Are you comfortable, dear?" she asked over and over during the past twenty-four hours, until Margaret awoke refreshed from a deep sleep and Dr. Bragg found her temperature almost down to normal again. He said she had passed the crisis, and pronounced both girls on the road to health.

People interested in the twins are still telephoning and telegraphing constantly to the Gibbs home, many offering suggestions for curing the disease and all solicitous for the children's welfare.

"This is not the first illness that they have had," she said. "They have had almost all children's diseases and in 1918 Margaret had 'flu' very severely, while Mary escaped it altogether. But I have never known either one to complain about having to lie in bed because the other was sick. They have wonderful dispositions and love each other dearly."

When Isadora First Shocked Society

(Fred Toye, of the Boston Evening American staff, was an intimate friend of Isadora Duncan for seventeen years and for seven years directed her theatrical appearances in this country and Europe. Here is the seventh installment of his splendidly told story of her unparalleled life.)

THE LIFE AND LOVES OF ISADORA DUNCAN.
By FRED TOYE.
Chapter 7.

AFTER leading her class of girls to safety from the tottering walls of the Windsor Hotel, Isadora did a strange thing; a thing which a scoffing public has never been willing to believe that she could bring herself to do.

"I fell on my knees and thanked God for the rescue of the children," she said simply in one of the very rare discussions she permitted of the fire.

In spite of all that has been said and written about the dancer, and in spite of all her protestations of paganism, Isadora had a deep-seated and unquenchable religious fervor. It manifested itself in many ways. In profound respect and reverence for clergy. In careful avoidance of direct attack upon existing faith. In love for the ancient Christian and Judaic traditions and practices. It manifested itself in startling interjections of "Ave Maria" renditions in her dance spectacles, and it electrified New York when during her season at the Century Theatre in 1913, she presented tableaux of the Flight into Egypt of the Holy Family.

SHOCKS SOCIETY

The rescue of the class of girls naturally made Isadora a heroine to the Four Hundred. Heretofore she had been merely a dancing teacher, but now she became an ob

BOXER HAS TWO WIVES; DOESN'T SUPPORT THEM

It was a tough day for William Polico, alias William Muzzio, former boxer, of Nevada street, Newton.

Appearing in Newton court on a charge of non-support of his wife and child, Polico was arrested on a warrant charging him with polygamy. A short time later an additional charge of non-support of his first wife and child was placed against the ex-pugilist, making it unanimous, as one might say.

Polico took it on the chin, in pugilistic parlance, pleading guilty to all charges, and was held for the Grand Jury in the sum of $2,500.

According to the police his first wife was Lillian Pepper of Cambridge, whom he married five years ago in Boston. One child resulted from the union.

The first Mrs. Polico said her husband deserted her more than two years ago and she took out a warrant for his arrest on a non-support charge a year later.

She had no trace of her husband until his second wife, who was Lillian Marchione of Newton, with whom he eloped to Newark two years ago, had him arrested for non support. The officers were waiting when Polico appeared in court and gave him a paper, to use another slang phrase.

Both women were in court and appeared friendly. Wife No. 1 kissed the offspring of Wife No. 2, and everything was lovely for everyone except Polico.

Owing to his plea of guilty, no testimony was given.

WIFE DRUNK 30 TIMES IN YEAR, HE TESTIFIES

That his wife Katherine developed an insatiable thirst for gin after eighteen years of married life was the testimony of Harry S. Kilcup, of Beacon street, at Brockton, in probate court today when he sought divorce on the ground of gross and confirmed habits of intoxication.

This thirst, he testified, began three years ago and progressed to such an extent that he threw away ninety-eight empty quart gin bottles during 1926. During nine months in 1926, he said, his wife was drunk about thirty times.

Mrs. Kilcup is to contest the case, but sent word she was too ill to appear today.

"My wife first got drunk in 1924, after we had been married eighteen years," testified Kilcup. "She then appeared before company with powder and paint and a silly grin over her face.

"During the Spring cleaning in 1926 I threw 60 empty gin bottles out of the house and the next Fall I discarded 48 empties. On April 15 she was gloriously drunk and I left her soon afterward."

Mrs. Cora A. Dudley of Turner street, Brighton, testified she had seen Mrs. Kilcup intoxicated.

CARMAN FREE in CRASH THAT KILLED SAILOR

Judge Sullivan in municipal court today found no probable cause in the case of Edward Maher of East Boston, operator of a one-man car, who was charged with manslaughter, and ordered his discharge. Maher's car was in collision with an automobile and Bunker Hill streets, Charlestown, September 12. Henry McConnell, 25, was killed, and two other sailors, Theodore Crawford and William Kerr, were injured.

PRISONER'S CRY GIVES MURDER TRIAL A STIR

Lawrence, Sept. 22.—In vivid detail, a detective sergeant portrayed today in Superior Court a furious battle waged in a Hartford, Ct., rooming house by 18-year-old Mary Cwiecka to save her sweetheart, Leo J. Nolin, from arrest for murder.

The picture was painted by Detective-Sergeant Thomas C. Hickey of Hartford at the trial of Nolin, Miss Cwiecka and Herman A. Reed, and the story was told, ironically enough, only a short time after the District Attorney had announced Mary would testify for the Government against Nolin.

Nolin and Reed are being tried on a charge of murdering William Griffin, Haverhill storekeeper, last March during a holdup. Miss Cwiecka is on trial as an alleged accessory after the fact.

Sergt. Hickey declared Mary had admitted to State Officer Richard Griffin of Massachusetts, in Hickey's presence, that she was in Haverhill in March with Nolin and Reed.

He also testified to Nolin's alleged admission that he was in Haverhill. Court proceedings were interrupted when Nolin, leaping to his feet in the cage enclosing him and Reed, yelled:

"That statement wasn't sworn to. Don't eat."

Court officers forced Nolin, who had been taking notes all day, back to his seat.

While he and an officer named McGwegor were attempting to arrest Nolin in Hartford, after subduing him and the girl, Sergt. Hickey testified, Miss Cwiecka leaped on the two officers, forced her way between them and placed her hands protectingly over Nolin's head upon which the sergeant was raining blows with a blackjack.

After Nolin had been subdued, he asked permission to get a drink of water in the kitchen, the sergeant testified, and because there was no other exit, he was allowed to do so.

"He went out into the kitchen," said the sergeant, "but instead of getting a drink, he placed his hands on his head and dived through the closed window, escaping."

FOUR NON-STOP DERBY FLIERS FAR WEST

New York, Sept. 22 (I.N.S.)—Trial Pilot "Duke" Schiller of Wilson, Ont., and his mechanic "Eddie" Bolin of St. Louis, in their Royal Windsor had progressed beyond Michigan and Stratford, Ont., in the non-stop air race to Spokane, Wash., was assured today when messages dropped by the fliers were received by the Rogers Airline here.

One message telegraphed by persons who picked it up, was dated Bay City, Mich., and read: "Still going. All O. K. Weather O. K. (signed) Duke and Eddie."

An earlier message, filed at Stratford, Ont., said: "Still going. All O. K. Just eating. Weather clear now. Had some rain."

Stinson Plane Heard Over Minneapolis

Minneapolis, Sept. 22 (I.N.S.)—A plane believed to be that in which Eddie Stinson of Detroit and Fred Koehler, his test pilot, are flying from New York to Spokane in a non-stop flight race, was reported as having passed over Minneapolis at 2:35 this morning.

Hunt Four Planes Missing in Derbies

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 22 (A.P.)—Four planes due here yesterday in the National Air Derby races, were listed among the missing today and searching aircraft were sent out in quest of two.

A. M. Banks of Philadelphia in a Pitcairn Fleetwing plane was last reported out of Chicago at 11:37 a. m. yesterday; R. E. Dake of Pittsburg in a Waco left Glendive, Mont., at 2:57 P. M. Both were in the class B race from New York to Spokane.

Verne Bookwalter, of Vancouver, Wash., and Art Borne, of Los Angeles, were unheard from since they left Medford, Ore., yesterday, in the Pacific Coast race.

Lacey Makes False Start; Counted Out by Referee

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 22 (A.P.)—Steve Lacey of Lomax, Ill., who started for Spokane at 11:02 a. m., returned 20 minutes later with a skipping engine. He said he would take off again as soon as Edward Mulligan, a Wright Company expert, had repaired the engine.

Lacey Hops Off for Spokane, Second Time

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 22 (A.P.)—Steve Lacey of Lomax, Ill., hopped off for Spokane for the second time in a non-stop flight at 2:19 p. m., Boston time, today.

He had started earlier but put back because of engine trouble.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 22 (A.P.)—Steve Lacey, is not a contestant in the New York-Spokane non-stop flight, E. A. Goff, Jr., referee, declared today. Lacey failed to start and would not be considered a contestant even if no other plane finished.

rumors, which both Constance and Captain Mackintosh continued to deny. In July, however, the twice-married film star was quoted as saying that she would soon file suit for divorce on the ground of desertion. Miss Talmadge insisted that she and "Alf," as the film people called him, call her friends.

As she sailed for Europe the first of August, Constance announced that she might think of divorce in the Fall.

The couple were married at the home of Jean De St. Cyr in San Mateo, Cal., in February, 1926. Miss Talmadge was previously married to John T. Pialofido, tobacco importer. She divorced him in June, 1923, and following this divorce was forced to take out naturalization papers to regain her American citizenship.

A change in the naturalization law since has been made which will make the step unnecessary should she obtain a divorce from Mackintosh.

HAPGOOD TO INSPECT PAPERS IN $100,000 SUIT

Powers Hapgood, wealthy radical, who was closely identified with the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti, appeared before Judge Morton in Suffolk Superior Court today and won the right to inspect records of the Psychopathic Hospital, where he was confined during the execution of the men.

Hapgood's appearance was in connection with his $100,000 suit against Captain Thomas E. Bligh of the State Police, in which he alleges Bligh signed the commitment papers without just cause. Hapgood told the court he was confined on August 22 and released the next day. Hapgood was arrested several times during Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations in front of the State House. He was found guilty of rioting on Boston Common and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction. He appealed.

DOCTOR DIES MARTYR TO YELLOW FEVER STUDY

London, Sept. 22 (A.P.).—The belief that the death of Prof. Adrian Stokes from yellow fever at Lagos, West Africa was that of a martyr to scientific investigation, on the very eve of his return with his task all but accomplished, was expressed today at the Guys Hospital Medical School, from which Prof. Stokes was granted leave of absence to conduct researches as a member of the Rockefeller Yellow Fever Commission.

Officials expressed belief that Prof. Stokes had caught the fever from one of the infected mosquitoes he was keeping for experimental purposes in his flight against yellow fever.

"There can be no doubt whatever that his death was due to the investigations he was carrying out," said Dr. T. B. Johnston, dean of Guys School.

POPE GIVES $100,000 TO FLOOD SUFFERERS

New York, Sept. 22.—The solicitude of Pope Pius XI. for the welfare of sufferers of the flood in the Mississippi Valley was revealed today in announcement that His Holiness has made a contribution of $100,000 to be used solely for the relief of flood victims in the stricken areas.

Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University and director-general of the Papal Relief during the great famine, transmitted the gift from His Holiness.

Professor Walsh is the representative of the Pontiff in matters appertaining to relief and welfare work he was designated to bring the gift to the annual meeting of the American Hierarchy, just concluded in Washington.

The news was greeted with applause by the assembled bishops after its announcement by the moderator of the conference, Cardinal O'Connell of Boston. A committee of bishops from the flood area was immediately formed, comprising Archbishop Shaw of New Orleans; Bishop Morris of Little Rock, Ark.; Bishop Van de Ven of Alexandria, La.; Bishop Jeanmard of Lafayette, La., and Bishop Gerow of Natchez, Miss.

This committee is now drawing up recommendations for the most economical and practical disposal of the princely gift from the Pope.

MORE TO GO AT NAVY YARD

Owing to the lack of work, 100 tradesmen of different ratings, employes at the Charlestown Navy Yard, will be laid off Saturday. Fifty of the men will be discharged, while the remaining half hundred will be furloughed.

Since June between 300 and 400 employes have been furloughed and discharged.

Unless additional work comes to the yard it is expected that about 600 men will be let out, when work on the battleship Utah is completed on October 29. There are no other large jobs in sight. The yard is expected to make bids on work to be performed on two Shipping Board boats.

merce. The business barometer "indicates prevailing, gratifying prosperity."

Ten-cent stores, important as evidence, show gains of 11 per cent. In 1927, against the first eight months of 1926. Nothing to worry those that attend to business, refrain from gambling, sleep regularly, breathe deeply, avoid bootleggers and "cultivate a disposition to be pleased."

In little Rollo's day a good boy would stoop to pick up a pin. The rich observant banker would notice him, employ him, marry him to his daughter, leave him his fortune. Economy was the watchword.

Modern James McStowe, of Canton, Ohio, says it is an exploded watchword. In Chicago he picked up a dime from the floor and as he stooped some one stole his pocketbook with $800. His motto reads: "Look after your $800 and the dimes will look after themselves."

The American Legion in Paris yesterday adopted the report of its national defense committee, demanding establishment of a national air force as a separate department, with an "Air Force Secretary" in the Cabinet. Common sense.

The man that had employed a coachman got a chauffeur when the automobile came in. Intelligent nations will add to their Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy a SECRETARY OF THE AIR, now that flying machines have come.

Young William B. Leeds, son of the "Tin Plate King," started his Fokker three motor engine flying machine for Chicago yesterday with six passengers and a relief pilot, he, Leeds, running the machine. They were to stop at Cleveland last night, then on to Chicago. Young men with money can promote flying in this day as W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and other young men with money promoted motoring twenty-five years ago.

Ex-Teacher Jailed Year in Million-Dollar Fraud Case

Philadelphia, Sept. 22 (A.P.).—With her once prosperous business in the hands of receivers and asserting that she is penniless, Miss Eleanor V. Martin, who gave up teaching school thirty years ago to enter the business world, must serve a year and a day in the reformatory for defrauding a number of finance companies out of nearly a million dollars.

Miss Martin, whose concern failed in 1925, with a loss of $800,000 to her creditors, had gradually expanded her business from a modest beginning until her club and deferred payment accounts aggregated $1,000,000 annually among 9,000 clients.

TRADES A YEAR FOR TWO DAYS

The law will force Edward Burke of Cambridge to stay a year behind the bars for two days' freedom he won by escaping from Deer Island House of Correction in a dory.

Although the usual punishment for escaping is six months, Judge Brown, in East Cambridge District Court today, gave Burke a year because the prisoner was a trusty who violated the confidence placed in him by the authorities.

Burke has been convicted four times of driving under the influence of liquor. He was serving eight months for this offense and for driving after his license was revoked when on September 6 he escaped with two other prisoners, only to be captured in Cambridge on September 8.

WIN PLEAS FOR FIRING SQUAD TO HONOR HERO

It took an appeal to the War Department to get a firing squad for the funeral of Dr. E. A. Knowles of North Shore road, Revere, who fought with the British and American forces in France, won a decoration and emerged a major.

Major Knowles was buried yesterday with fitting honors, a squad of sixteen privates, a bugler and a commissioned officer, sent from Fort Andrews by the War Department, firing the last salute at the grave.

Appeals to the commandant of the First Corps Area in Boston, to Fort Banks and to the National Guard failed before the appeal to the War Department was made by Mark Bronson, past commander of Revere Post, American Legion, in charge of funeral arrangements.

According to Bronson, officers at the First Corps Area refused because all spare forces were needed in connection with the arrival of the Japanese warships in Boston harbor.

Fort Banks authorities, Bronson claims, said they had no authority t- send a squad, while the adjutant-general of the National Guard said that if a squad were sent, the men would probably have to be paid.

New Nungesser Note Says "We Are Down in the Channel"

Paris, Sept. 22 (I.N.S.)—Two new developments today revived hopes that the disappearance of Captains Nungesser and Coli in their transatlantic airplane "White Bird" might yet be solved.

A message to Le Petit Parisien from The Hague reports the finding of a bottle on the beach near Schiuhn, Holland, containing a message written in blue ink and purported to have been signed "Nungesser and Coli." It reads:

"We have come down in the Channel."

The second development was finding at Cranpoulet, near Cape Gris-Nez, of a small portion of the tail of an airplane, covered with what appears to be silver and white canvas. It has been sent to naval officials for examination.

FULLER ASKED TO PARDON SLAYER

The murder was committed under the cover of darkness and the body was discovered the following morning by two Medford boys crossing the field on their way to Watertown.

Police inspectors for a time believed that she had been the victim of a jealous suitor.

During the investigation the alleged suitor was questioned several times. A ... passed and then as aunt of Peter Delorey, living in Billerica, came forward and declared that her nephew and his friend James Mantir had committed the crime.

She maintained that she had a dream and in the dream saw the crime re-enacted. Mantir and Delorey were arrested.

At that time a year had elapsed since the murder. Mantir and Delorey were arrested and convicted after pleading guilty to a second degree murder charge.

There were thousands who believed Delorey was innocent. Some of these were persons high up in the Cambridge police department today. Even to this day these officers claim the two were the victims of a miscarriage of justice.

Stratis, who has been working continually for the freedom of Mantir has recently returned from the home of the prisoner in Greece where he held several conferences with the mother, brothers and sisters of the man whose release he seeks.

According to Stratis the mother of Mantir has always hoped for his freedom and that some day he might return to her.

When Mantir wrote three years ago to his mother and told her that Delorey had gained his freedom it raised her hopes higher than ever. She expected that it would perhaps be only a matter of months before she could welcome her son home.

Dr. Theodore A. Hoch, assistant commissioner of mental diseases, when asked today about the mental condition of Mantir, declared that the prisoner, from latest reports received from the Bridgewater institution, would never recover his sanity.

DEMPSEY SAYS HE'S OUT TO FORCE FIGHT

ing. Estelle admitted, although she was cheerful and outwardly calm when she kissed Jack goodbye and told him that she knew he would win. I knew that she was quivering and very near tears when she said:

"Win or lose, Jack, I will be waiting for you, but it will be victory I feel sure."

Jack, always like a big, awkward boy when he is with Estelle, listened to her words of love and confidence with a smile on his face. His expression bore little or no resemblances to the fierce Manassa Mauler described by Damon Runyon, Warren Brown, Eddie Frayne, Gene Fowler and the other real sport writers.

WILL ABIDE BY RULE.

Then suddenly like a dark cloud in a peaceful sky, his whole expression changed, and with a brow black and lowering, he said:

"You may tell your readers for me that my hands will be taped in my dressing room. Gene Tunney and twenty of his friends can be present when my hands are wrapped but the job will be done in the privacy of my dressing room and not in the ring.

"I go into the ring to fight," said this Jack that Hollywood has never met, "not to have my hands taped The Illinois Boxing Commission says that all prize fighters' hands shall be bound in the fighters' dressing rooms and I shall abide by that law or else there will be no fight."

Estelle sitting on his knee replied "You are right. Promise me you will not weaken."

ADMIRES ESTELLE.

I listened to Estelle with something akin to admiration and wonderment. Most people think she is just a motion picture actress, a pretty girl with deep, dark eyes who has fallen in love with a popular prize fighter. Estelle is no mere pretty girl; she is a woman of brains, and let me tell you Jack Dempsey doesn't make a move without consulting her. I have spent the last twenty-four hours with her and I know whereof I speak.

If Jack wins as Hollywood hopes and prays, much of that success can be said at the door of his wife, who has been untiring in her efforts to see that he gets a square deal in the matter of referee, boxing commission and with the judges.

Hollywood's motion picture stars have both beauty and brains. That's what makes them such a devastating combination.

MYRA C. HILL TESTS RIGHT TO SEND HER HERE

Mrs. Myra C. Hill charged with muleting Bostonians of $130,000 in Florida real estate deals, but successful repeatedly in defeating efforts of Boston police to extradite her from Washington, today further intrenched herself in legal technicalities.

She challenged the right of the chief justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court to act in the capacity of a governor of a State in extradition cases—a right these chief justices have exercised for more than a century.

Her attorneys contend that this right has never been tested and they have won a delay until later in the year when the matter will be argued.

The last time Boston officers went to get Mrs. Hill, having obtained extradition papers in Washington they were ready to whisk her across the line before she could again call legal technicalities to her aid.

But, chiefly because of her weight, which is between 250 and 300 pounds, she made their progress from court house to taxicab so slow that a lawyer obtained a habeas corpus writ before she could be put in the taxi.

COST $350 TO BE KIND TO BACK BAY STRANGER

It cost Jean O. Rauschert of Huntington avenue just $350 today to take a lesson in Boston high finance.

Jean was viewing the sights of the Back Bay and trying to figure out how Capn Kidd sailed up the waters upon which the section was built. A man, whom he describes as a Spaniard stepped up and asked directions to find a certain man. Jean didn't know him, or the Spaniard either, for that matter.

A third man joined the group. He knew the man in question. They set off toward Worcester street to find him.

On the way the subject of money and modern pirates came up. They all went into an alley to compare bankrolls and to discuss safety measures.

Suddenly the Spaniard, who had somehidden the three rolls of money, to see how much was there, was stricken with a fit. The roll was handed to Jean with instructions to rush to a drug store and get medicine for the stricken man.

When he returned the Spaniard and his friend were gone.

Jean inspected the roll of bills, which proved to be newspaper with a $1 overcoat.

The joint reunion with election of officers by each association, was arranged in cooperation with the Chamber of Commerce.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Thomas Powers in Birthday Party at Newport

WITH HIS CUSTOMARY lavish hospitality Thomas Powers, Beau Brummell and boulevardiere extraordinary of Newport, has made his farewell gesture to the season at that famous resort. The occasion was his birthday anniversary, for which Mr. Powers gathered about him a choicely small coterie of friends to help observe his more than "three score and ten." Now he nies himself to salubrious Hot Springs for the cure and his usual Autumn visit in the beautiful hill country of Virginia.

A WEALTH OF AUTUMNAL flowers graced the Powers table when at the Clambake Club Mr. Powers entertained for luncheon on the eventful birthday anniversary. And a wealth of congratulatory telegrams, messages and floral remembrances showered on the host, for his popularity is unending. Not content with one hospitality, Mr. Powers followed the midday celebration with an evening musicale at his apartment in the Muenchinger-King.

MUSIC AND FEASTING AND THE CUTTING OF AN ENORMOUS birthday cake, all snowwhite and glistening, wound up the day ceremoniously. The Powers circle, for which he loves to create splendid hospitalities, includes the Charles F. P. Richardsons, Mrs. Elisha Dyer, Rear Admiral William B. Caperton, Mrs. Caperton and their daughter, Miss Marguerite Caperton.

ALSO MR. AND MRS. GEORGE B. DeFOREST, MRS. GIBSON Fahnestock, Mr. and Mrs Cleveland F. Bacon, Mrs. Drexel Dahlgren, Mr. Henry C. Dieter. Now, until another season rolls its social way around, no more will Mr. Powers be frequenting Bellevue avenue, where he is as well known as in Park avenue.

THE DANIEL DE MENOCALS STILL LINGER IN NEWPORT'S pleasant confines, although the season is assuredly waning and the honk and whir of gleaming motors along the Drive and the Avenue diminish day by day. The de Menocals for their Newport establishment have Sheffield House in Newport outskirts, where rolling farming lands are just giving way to unassuming country places, quite far from the stately formality of an "Ochre Court" or a "Breakers."

THE HANDSOME NEW YACHT "WINCHESTER" has taken the Vincent Astors away from Newport at the season's end, and hence forward Beechwood, the Astor estate in the Avenue, will lie dormant behind its screening hedge and stucco wall. The Winchester is a floating palace which conveys its plutocratic owner hither and yon over the bounding wave.

THE SUMMERTIME WAS VERY PLEASANTLY SPENT BY THE John H. Fays of Boston and Nahant. They went abroad for two months or more, to make a round of family visits before settling down in town for the Autumn and the time when Mr. Fay becomes known as Dr. Fay. The Fays of an older generation have long been identified with Nahant's Summer colony. Mrs. John Fay was Miss Madeleine Heals, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Dudley B. Fay and sister-in-law of Mrs. Henry Bernard Montague (Rosamond Fay) of England.

HOW BABIES ARE SAVED IN CHINA BY ROCKEFELLER

What the Rockefeller Foundation is doing to save the lives of babies in China is vividly pictured in the current issue of M-G-M News, now being shown in leading motion picture theatres throughout the country. They were made by the M-G-M News special representative in China and it is the first time that motion pictures have ever been made of the work being done there.

Thousands of Chinese youngsters are cared for there annually. It is the only hospital of its kind in Asia and treatment, of course, is free. The M-G-M News pictures show vast numbers of Chinese babies of all ages and size, and how American doctors and nurses care for them.

BUTLER STAYS G. O. P. CHIEF

Washington, Sept. 22 (I. N. S.).—Persistent rumors that former Sen. William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, close personal friend of President Coolidge, will shortly resign as chairman of the Republican National Committee, were denied today by an administration spokesman.

Butler will remain as titular head of the committee, it was said, until the next Republican convention selects a new standard-bearer. This procedure was said to have been decided upon by Butler at the expressed wish of the President.

Midshipmen from the Japanese cruisers Asama and Iwate, anchored in the harbor off the East Boston ferry, today visited Boston navy yard on a tour of inspection. Officers from the navy yard acted as guides to the visiting midshipmen numbering about 200.

A luncheon to the midshipmen was served under the direction of Rear-Admiral Philip Andrews, who will be the host this evening to Rear-Admiral Nagano and his officers at dinner at the commandant's residence.

During the stay of the cruisers here the public is invited to visit them from 9 until 5 o'clock daily. Barges leaving Northern avenue pier will carry visitors.

Monahan, who is New England sales representative of the H. F. Goodrich Company of Akron, Ohio, is the regular Democratic candidate. He is Peter J. Monahan. HAIL DANCER AS EUROPE'S IDOL

ject of avid interest. Society matrons whose daughters she had led from beneath the burning embers, decided that her work must be known. The pretty young dancer with strange ideas must be launched under the "right" direction.

The ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel was engaged, and all arrangements were made for a gala presentation.

The reception of Isadora's startling dance novelty was amusing. The piece de resistance was the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, with sister Elizabeth reading the verses. Isadora's first costume was not alarming, but her second was of such brevity that several haughty dowagers rose and sailed forth from the room in indignation.

The braver ones who remained through the second episode heaved sighs of relief when she emerged for the third time; now wearing a drapery of apparently considerable length and extreme modesty. Their relief was short-lived, however, for with each stride of the dancer a glistening pink leg issued forth from the slit robe. Such frankness was unbelievable. Society was stirred to the marrow.

AT NEWPORT

In spite of the startling nature of her performance, however, it was not long before Isadora was the fad of New York society. She was taken to Newport, first to the salon of Mrs. Calvin Brice, and later to Marble Hall and other famous mansions. Now Isadora was enabled to indulge her passion for lecturing; a whim that remained with her throughout her career.

She gave charming little talks on "The Poetry of Motion," telling her listeners in a timid, artless way, that she thought it was possible to find beauty of thought expressed in motion; that the body could be in a happy rhythm with music. She told them that the new form of entertainment which she wished to offer them was to the eye what music was to the ear.

The artistic collaboration of distinguished poets was always Isadora's hobby, and in these early days of her career, she reached the dignity of having the quatrains of the Tentmaker recited by no less personage than Justin Huntley McCarthy.

Despite her success, Isadora continued low in funds, and it was only after a particularly brilliant entertainment given on the lawn of Marble Hall by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, later Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, that the dancer was able to get together the large sum of $150 which was to bring about a great change in her circumstances and inaugurate the third phase of her remarkable career.

GOES TO LONDON

The $150 Isadora invested in tickets for the entire Duncan family on a London-bound cattle boat, and in the Summer of 1899, she shook the dust of New York from her heels, not to reappear there until nine years later, after she had been acclaimed by all the capitals of Europe.

Isadora Duncan seems to have shot into her place of startling brilliance with the speed of a meteor.

Scarcely known in New York in the Summer of 1899, she was the idol of half of Europe before Christmas of the following year.

True, there were trying times at the start of the new life. The little family floundered about in London for a short time, and then managed to get to France.

"I shall never forget the day we arrived in Paris," she used to narrate.

"The four of us, Elizabeth, Gus, Raymond and myself, spent our very last francs for tickets way up in the last gallery of the Trocadero to see Mounet-Sully in "Oedipus Rex" of Sophocles. He was marvelous, and I have worshipped him ever since."

The great old French patriarchal actor indeed left a life-long mark on Isadora's sensibilities. His tremendous power, his thrilling voice, his majestic stride completely satisfied her exacting demands as to what a great actor should be.

The tragedy, too, moved her as few things except great music were able to do. Oedipus, most sweeping tragedy in the realms of dramatic composition, and the most terrible in conception, apart from the Crucifixion, stirred the woman to her deepest soul.

Tomorrow Fred Zaye will tell of Isadora Duncan's early days in Paris and London, and the little known story of her relations with Henry M. Stanley.

DELAY DOUBLE WEDDING TO HEAR FIGHT NEWS

Bloomingdale, N. J., Sept. 22 (A.P.)—A double wedding ceremony has been postponed so that the principals may listen in on the radio reports of the Dempsey-Tunney fight tonight.

Miss Minnie Cook was to have married Marcus Koelwyn, and her sister, Miss Anna Cook, was to have been wedded to Arthur Vanderhoof at the Butler Methodist Episcopal Church this evening.

All four decided to postpone the weddings until Saturday so they might not miss the fight returns.

DOCTOR FLYING TO FIRE RUINS WHERE 20 DIED

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 22.—A lone doctor with emergency materials was flying over wilderness wastes carrying relief to the survivors of the tragic Beauval Catholic Mission conflagration that took a toll of twenty lives, nineteen of them Indian children and the other Sister Lea, a teacher who died in brave rescue work.

First news of the disaster reaching Prince Albert, Sask., sent Dr. A. Amyot of Regina winging his way northward with the hope of saving a priest, whose burns received in an hour of heroism may prove fatal.

Word of the horrible night fire was brought out of the interior by a party of woodsmen, who had traveled by launch to secure help.

Their account of the disaster was meagre. The mission, one of the oldest in the north, was a frame structure, and the fatal fire was the third in three years.

Dr. Amyot, who rushed to Winnipeg to secure supplies before taking off on his hazardous flight, said that the only information so far available placed the dead at 20, with the survivors including 46 children.

The launch crew, he said, had praised Fathers La Jaunesse, Angeni and Adam, brothers of the Order Oblate Fathers, whose heroic efforts were responsible for many rescues.

Preparations were being completed today to rush relief supplies to the survivors.

SUICIDE'S BODY TO BE BURIED SATURDAY

The body of Leigh B. Huntley, 24-year-old Waltham school teacher who committed suicide by shooting, which was found in West Newton, near Calvary Cemetery, will be sent tomorrow to his home in Claremont, N. H., for funeral services and burial Saturday.

Willis N. Huntley, father of the young man, who had been missing since September 14, left for Claremont today, firmly believing that illness caused his son to seek relief in death. Medical Examiner George L. West performed the autopsy and reported Huntley's death due to suicide.

The body was found by a dog owned by Mrs. George Davidson of No. 27 Kensington avenue, West Newton. The dog, sniffing at what appeared to be a bundle of clothing, attracted her attention. Upon investigating she found it was the body of a man. It was identified later as that of Huntley.

Lying beside the body was an old style 32-calibre revolver, with one chamber empty and one cartridge showing indications of having misfired. Nearby was a mirror that Huntley had taken from his own automobile the night he disappeared.

The body was found about the same time that the father was trying to persuade the Waltham police to drag the Charles River.

RADIO DIALOG

By C. WILLIAM RADIO

TONIGHT an outstanding fight broadcast occurs. Many fans seated at the Chicago fight will also stand if they want to see it. Locations WNAC WEEI WBZ will threaten to broadcast it and as they hope to, so do we.

Promptly on the dot at ten or nine or around half past the program direct from Chicago will start. When it will stop is not known, but it is hoped it will. The time mentioned is Eastern Standard, Western Daylight, Chicago Moonlight and Roxbury Electric Light time. In addition, New York will be supplied by courtesy of the Ingersoll Watch Company.

Unless it rains, snows, cyclones or a blow up. Or a pence conference for more money.

Graham McNamee and Major Andrew White have been hired to talk about the fight. Phillips Carlin will assist Microphone Mac. Without bothering to mention the names of the male population of the U. S. we know several others who would be willing to assist talking about the battle.

Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney have done much talking about the fight. In their descriptions they lack color. All they know is yellow and green.

Without a word to Central or even a nickel in the slot, McNamee and White and Carlin will connect with New York, Erseo, and Charles Street jail directly from Chicago. They will be known as the three telephoners who didn't get a hill at the end of the month.

The reason the exact time cannot be stated is because it is not known when the undertakers will remove the last preliminary boxer. But at 10:00 o'clock the big battle should start. Threats arose mis understanding or misbehanding both the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Gem of the Ocean assert it will do the talking exclusively and emphatically—yes Dr. all.

The Red and Blue chains will broadcast. The yellow and green is with Rickard. And either Dempsey or Tunney will be black and blue. Pick your winning colors.

Becky by Rayner Seelig

A Real Drama of Intrigue in Boston Theatrical Life After Curtain

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Becky McCloskey, young, good-looking, trying to make her way alone in Boston, finds herself without a position. Dan Scarlett, who lives by his wits, sees her huddled in a doorway and persuades her to go to dinner with him. Scarlett realizes that she has a beautiful voice and makes a bargain to finance her until she gets started if she will let him share her profits. Becky joins a chorus. Scarlett induces her to go to a party given by Boris Abelard on the chance that she may meet the rich John Estabrook, her ideal. At the party Becky is thrust into a fountain with her clothes on and faints. Abelard sends his guests away and has Becky taken care of. Months afterwards Becky meets Estabrook in the studio. She tells him she wishes he had never come. Estabrook finds himself interested in her and kisses her. She stands dazed before him and tells him she expected him to be different. Becky tells Estabrook her ideals of real love. Later she sings and Estabrook is astonished and greatly moved.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 10

"BY heaven, she sings as though she meant it!" Estabrook heard a man behind him say as the homely words of Becky's song held the listeners spellbound. Estabrook never moved his eyes from Becky McCloskey's face. A face which suddenly seemed transformed before his very eyes.

"Heaven help me, Big Boy, all the mascara's gettin' in my eyes." Estabrook turned for an instant, saw a painted artist's model, her mouth curiously contorted, little black rivulets coursing down her face. Then he looked again at Becky, and somehow what had before seemed hardness in her features was now a curious chiseled perfection, and her mouth which had seemed bold with its gamin smile was wistful and tender, and the wide eyes that still mirrored a great hunger and a great despair. And the voice that was some day to thrill thousands went on to the end . . . .

"I know who I love
But the dear knows who I'll marry . . ."

There was no applause when Becky finished that song. She had woven a spell of enchantment, and he palace of the sleeping beauty was not more still than Boris Aberlard's studio when the last vibration of the last note had died.

Becky herself broke the spell.

"Lord I'm tired," she ejaculated, stretching like a cat. "Good night, folks. I'm gonna hit the hay."

Powdering her nose in the dressing room sat Becky's arch enemy, blonde and fragile Violet Vincent. This one, looking up, said in a choked voice: "Becky, I've done you a lot of dirty tricks and I've never thought much of you, but I wanna say—" She put out her hand, and Becky saw that it was shaking. "You have a great future."

"Oh, let, it go, Violet." Becky murmured. "I don't want any bow-wye."

The blonde girl shrugged. "Well, maybe you'll take a word of kind advice instead doiling. Lay off this boy Estabrook. He's a big stiff that doesn't know how to treat a lady even if he is a gentleman."

"You cut that out!" Becky's sweet voice was a growl.

"You better stick to Dan Scarlett dolling," the blonde pursued doggedly. "That's if you know what's good for you. He doesn't take to this mushy stuff, and he won't let you put it over, either."

"My business don't concern Dan Scarlett—or you."

"Everybody's business concerns Dan Scarlett, doling, or he wouldn't be on easy street today. Take it from Violet; trent him square and he'll treat you square. Danny's a wise bird even if he is a jail bird."

"A jail bird? Dan?" Becky stared biting her lips.

"Mean you didn't know?" Violet looked, for an instant, as disturbed as the girl she was tormenting.

"Oh—I don't care that for Dan Scarlett, in jail or out of it. I have better taste, thank you." And snapping her fingers, turned to go.

"You don't know a man from a—an eggshell," blazed Violet. "Dan Scarlett's worth five of this Estabrook. He has brains."

"Well I never knew you were stuck on the Dandelion," said Becky amicably, "Good luck dearie." And Oh went out, slamming the door But behind her cool manner there was a shadow of annoyance. a shadow, too, of her fear of Scarlett, which had gradually grown, grown, into something intangible but real.

"What're you doing here?"

Becky, emerging from the elevator deep in pessimistic reflection was dismayed to see Estabrook, arrayed in coat and muffler, standing directly in her path.

"I'm waiting to take you home," he answered, while his eyes appraised the shabbiness of her evening coat with its bedraggled rabbit skin collar. "Did you think I'd let you go alone?"

"It wouldn't be the first time." Becky said drearily.

In the brown and white taxi that went skidding recklessly along the snowy streets she huddled away from him, with no comment but: "I live in the South End, if this guy can find anything that far away."

Estabrook, feeling small pulses throb all over his body, watched her out of the corner of his eyes.

"You have a great voice, Becky."

RACE COSTS 6 LICENSES

PUNISHES 6 CYCLE RACERS

A night motorcycle race on the Andover Turnpike Tuesday night, carefully planned, but broken up by the police, cost six of the participants their licenses and registration plates as a result of action by Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles.

The six motorcyclists who aroused the ire of the registrar and lost their standing for a while at least are:

Amadee Bernard of Salem, Arthur L. Cobb of Malden, Emile Girard of Salem, Rene J. Harrison of Salem Charles E. Abbott of Salem, and James C. Trefry of Beverly.

In suspending the licenses, Registrar Goodwin said:

"These men were engaged in a race on the Andover pike, between Peabody and Milleton, the motorcycles going as fast as 70 miles an hour."

The race, which was staged on Tuesday night, was broken up by the appearance of three motor vehicle inspectors, who watched one heat and then decided it was time to interfere. They claimed the party had been planned for weeks in advance.

CAMBRIDGE MAN HELD ON 2 ATTACK CHARGES

Charged on two counts with assault with a dangerous weapon, Ralph DeMasela of Fourth street, East Cambridge, was held in $5,000 bail today for the Grand Jury by Judge Edward A. Counihan in East Cambridge District Court. De Masela is alleged to have chased guests at his home with an axe. Two claimed to have been injured and had DeMasela arrested.

Wellesley Girl to Wed Chiang

ADMITTED BY CHINESE BEAUTY

Miss Meiling Soong, beautiful graduate of Wellesley College, admitted her engagement to marry General Chiang Kai-Shek, former commander-in-chief of the Chinese Nationalist forces, according to dispatches from Shanghai today.

Miss Soong, at a dinner to her most intimate Chinese and foreign friends, confirmed reports that she was to marry Chiang, who retired a short time ago as leader of the Cantonese army.

Because of the objections of her family to the match, there will be no formal announcement of the engagement at present. Miss Soong said:

"I sincerely love the great general."

It was stated that Chiang will arrive in Shanghai next week from Fenghwa, where he has been since he stepped down from the post of leader of the Nationalist forces. The couple will then embark on different ships for Japan to lay siege to the Soong family, who are spending the Summer there.

Miss Soong is reputed to be one of the most beautiful young Chinese women in Shanghai society. She is a sister of T. V. Soong, who was finance minister in the original National st government, and of Mme Sun Yat-Sen, widow of the man who founded the Nationalist movement. Mme. Sun Yat-Sen graduated from an American college and T. V. Soong was a member of the Harvard class of 1915.

Chiang, who was born in 1888, early became interested in the Nationalist movement and up to the time of the military reverses which brought about his retirement, was regarded as an invincible general.

He divorced his wife in 1921. His romance with Miss Soong is reputed to have begun at Canton two years ago. If Miss Soong marries him she will violate an age-old precedent, as a Chinese girl is not allowed to choose her mate

New York, Sept. 22 (A.P.)—A reputed desire to shower his sweetheart with finery today found an erstwhile real estate salesman in prison at the end of a fictitious career as a movie producer, former Yale football captain and all-American football star.

V. Neely Mulloy, who had called himself William Neely Mallory was arrested, seriously injured on the sidewalk in Fifty-ninth street, after he had jumped from a second story window of the New York Athletic Club to escape the police after making a poseur with a hold-up gun in the Hotel Plaza, it was announced by Herbert Lubin, motion picture director.

At Bellevue hospital he gave his name as W. Neely Mallory, his home as Memphis, Tenn., his occupation as a real estate dealer, and he insisted he was the football star of that name who was All-American Yale team at fullback in 1925. Coal, Coke Gifts for Amateur Forecasters

Hail, rain and snow experts of no accomplishment or reputation got together today and figured out that if it has got to snow this Winter as, oddly enough, it has in some past Winters—well, why not make the most of it.

So out of a clear sky a joust at amateur forecasting has been arranged for the approaching snowy semester and is announced herewith by the Boston Evening American.

It's all in good, clean fun, even if coal and coke will be forthcoming to the best six snow calculators.

The rules won't require you to do it scientifically, you don't even have to have any hard feelings"

SIX AWARDS.

You've got to send in your forecast as to when the first snow will fall in the Metropolitan Boston area as taken in by the Boston weather bureau. Your forecast must include the day, hour and minute. Only residents of Metropolitan Boston are eligible to send in predictions.

The person sending in the correct forecast, or the nearest correct forecast according to the Boston weather bureau tabulation will become the proud possessor of three tons of coal, valued at $48. Every prediction must be accompanied by a fifty word letter explaining upon what basis of study the forecast is reached.

The second hando it to the second best forecaster will be three tons of coke, valued at $30.

And the other four presentations for the next four best forecasters will be:

Two tons coal, valued at $32.
Two tons coke, valued at $.6.
One ton coal, valued at $16
One ton coke, valued at $12.

Who wouldn't warm up at these six prospects that give one a chance to exercise in public that long secretly nursed opinion that he can figure out the weather just as good as any expert"

The firm of F. S. Morse & Company, No. 170 Medford street, Charlestown, has generously donated ten tons of coal for the competition, and the New England Coal & Coke Company of No. 3 Stuart street a shoveling out six tons of coke.

If these records are of any help to you, absorb them.

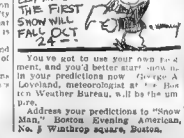
Snow has never fallen in Metropolitan Boston in September in the history of the bureau.

SEND ALONG PREDICTIONS.

Since 1891 it has fallen in October on Oct. 3, 1899; Oct. 23, 1903; Oct. 23, 1904; Oct. 23, 1903; Oct 14 1911 Oct. 27, 1914; Oct. 24, 1915; Oct. 19, 1925.

In the years 1891, 1901, 1903 and 1907 there was no snow until December.

It's liable to come anytime in November.



You've got to use your own judgment, and you'd better start soon to in your predictions now. George A. Loveland, meteorologist at the Boston Weather Bureau, will be the umpire.

Address your predictions to "Snow Man," Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

Dempsey's Wife Gets Two Movie Offers

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

Chicago, Sept. 22—Every thought not centered on Jack Dempsey and his coming battle with Gene Tunney is being given to the next Emil Jannings' picture by Estelle Taylor. Can you blame her when a telegram came asking her to be Jannings' leading woman in "The General?"

If Estelle answers that question in the affirmative then she will trail for Hollywood Friday and Jack and Jhanna a late train day in New York. But I don't think the chance to play in a Jannings picture will induce Estelle to remain with New York.

When I was chatting with her telegram came from Universal, an offer for her to play opposite Conrad Veidt in "The Man Who Laughs." She was delighted when she read the two offers in her mail commenting on each, while she lunched Jack's fine combination and chances of wresting the world championship from Gene Tunney. Whether it will be Universal or Paramount no one knows, but it seems to be one or the other for Estelle is a modern loving woman who doesn't want to be in the reflected glory of her famous husband's career.

She wants to continue her work as a screen actress. I can see no reason why she shouldn't.

FRED THOMSON, the cowboy star of the Hollywood Army who admits he is for Gene Tunney in reaching here tonight with his wife, Mrs. Thomson, as all the world knows is Frances Marion. Fred is a newcomer to the screen, still among the Tunney household. She too is for Tunney. Well, I suppose it depends on whether one is considering the puncher's purse.

TUNNEY DROPS TO EVEN BETTING CHOICE

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

SPEED, ACCURACY, INTEGRITY — NEWS THE DAY IT HAPPENS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1927

DEMPSEY IS READY FOR COMEBACK

Jack Conway Picks Tunney, But Says Champion Is Facing Tough Foe

By JACK CONWAY.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 22.—Jack Dempsey will try to prove they can come back when he whirls into action against Gene Tunney in their ten-round battle at Soldiers' Field tonight.

Dempsey, fresh from his triumph over Sharkey, will attempt to one more batter his way to the pugilistic heights. He will try to conquer the man who handed him such a crushing defeat at Philadelphia a year ago.

Jack Conway

The heart of the West is with Dempsey. The same condition exists all over the country. The sport world wants to see the old champion win. It jeered and booed him when he ruled the heavyweight class, but now that he is fighting to regain his former place in the fistic sun it is with him heart and soul.

Tunney was only an even money choice in the betting today. There is plenty of Dempsey money around but the Tunney supporters are a little bit shy in putting up their cash. They openly charge that if it is possible to do so the decision will go to the old champion tonight.

Rickard, argue the wise men, will pull every string possible to assure a Dempsey victory. Tex does not know a great deal about the boxing ability of his two star performers tonight, but he does realize that Dempsey is the card. And Tex doesn't like to see his boxing cards crumble.

Kingdom is also with Dempsey. He has come up from the rods of the roving freight trains and the mob is with him to a man. And they say that even under legalized boxing that the kings of kingdom have power.

Despite all the rumblings heard along Michigan avenue and in the back rooms of the beer joints in the South Side, I still believe Tunney will win. He beat Dempsey easily a year ago and should do so again. He won't choke up even if the front rows are filled with hostile gangsters.

Tunney considers himself a man of destiny. He does not believe there is a fighter in the world whom he cannot conquer.

The experts have written a great deal about Dempsey's improved training form. Where's no denying he is better now than he was a year ago at Philadelphia, though still far from the form he displayed when he knocked out the gigantic Louis Firpo at New York four years ago.

HARD, TOUGH FIGHT.

Leo Flynn has conserved Dempsey's fighting strength by permitting him to engage in light training drills. He wants Jack to enter the ring with all the pounds possible.

I look for Dempsey to make it a hard, tough fight. He will center his attack on Tunney's stomach, much like he did when he battled Sharkey. He believes he will wear the champion down and pave the way for a knockout.

Dempsey still packs a terrific punch. Time kills off a heavyweight's speed and dims his eyesight, but it does not rob him of his old sock.

Besides his hitting power Dempsey has two other great assets. He has courage and the experience gained in engaging in numerous tough battles. He has proved in all his bouts that he is quick to take advantage of a mistake of an opponent.

It will not be well for Tunney to make any blunders tonight. A single error may send him crashing from the heavyweight throne.

At Philadelphia, Tunney fought a perfect battle. Not once did he miss. Even when his blood must have tingled after he had Dempsey groggy from a right and punch to the chin in the first round, Tunney fought according to plan. He kept circling the ring, ruining the Manassa Mauler by his long range fighting. Dempsey and Flynn knew it will be touch sledding if Tunney goes along evenly tonight. That was the reason for Jack's open letter to the public. He wanted to get under Gene's skin if possible. He felt that if he could get the champ irritated and the latter might open up and swap blows. And there is no man living who can stand toe to toe with Dempsey without getting his head knocked off.

ATE ONE MILLION SHORT.

Billy Gibson says the Dempsey camp of strategy failed in its attempt to ruffle Gene. He insists that Tunney will fight in his usual

THE SHADOW OF A DOUBT —

"I Am Supremely Confident of Victory," Says Dempsey

By JACK DEMPSEY

Special Dispatch to Boston Evening American

(Copyright, 1927, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Chicago, Sept. 22.—I'm ready to fight.

And I hope Gene Tunney is in the same mood.

I am supremely confident of victory. I'm hopeful of scoring a knockout—and doing it in a hurry. But if I fail in that I have a firm belief that I will be declared the winner if both of us are on our feet with the final bell.

Never since 1921 have I felt sure of myself, never have I been more anxious to get into motion and never have I known more perfect co-ordination.

My only worry is on the point of whether I can get away to a good start.

Whenever I think back over my career I find that I am what might be called one of those dual personalities in this fight racket. I either get away to a whirlwind start, such as I did against Willard, Morse, Pelky, Fulton, Firpo and some of the others or I can't get untracked for a long while, as is shown by my battles with Gibbons, Tunney, Brennan (in 1926), and a few more like those.

I've tried to figure out why it was that I could not get really started in those battles that went a long way, and I can't find any other answer than that I went into the ring not quite in top-notch shape, that I wasn't fully tuned up and had to go through a lot of rounds in all those fights before I really got under way.

If that's the explanation—well, this will be a short fight and a fast fight.

I want nothing in life more than to get that old, battered crown. Every thought through a year has been of that; every energy through many months has been bent toward that end.

And tonight all that I have to toss into a prize ring goes into the effort to whip Gene Tunney, cleanly and decisively, and become once again what I was for seven years: "Jack Dempsey, champion."

I WALKED into Tunney's jabs in Philadelphia but I won't walk into them now. I carried all the fight to him that night—and let him do the countering. I'll carry the fight to him tonight—but I won't carry all of it. And Tunney won't do all the countering. I'll be in there doing some of it myself. I hardly used my right hand against Tunney a year ago. I figuring I could finish him with a left hook. This time I will be a two-handed fighter.

only against that form of attack. he is dead wrong. I am going out to rip his body with short punches and keep on ripping him there until I've reduced him to a point where he is about ready to call it a nice evening's work.

And then I hope to nail him for the full count with the left hook that I tried to finish him with in Philadelphia.

Sure I figure that Tunney will be laying in a few himself in the meantime. But I still have faith in my jaw being able to take all that he can hand out. I took it in Philadelphia, the jaw is just as stout as it was then.

FOR I am fit and ready and I feel certain that when the old gong bangs I can go into Tunney with plenty of speed and with mind, eye and muscle working perfectly and no matter what trickery he tries, force him to forget his ideas that we are engaging in a "boxing contest" and becoming once again what I was for seven years: "Jack Dempsey, champion."

Minister Prays God to K. O. Dempsey

Ashtabula, O., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Rev. H. P. Dunlop Chicago evangelist, led forty followers in prayer at a revival meeting here tonight, urging the Lord to "strike Jack Dempsey a solar plexus blow" and thus end the big fight before it begins.

JACK AND GENE WEIGHING IN SEPARATELY

As cool as a cake of ice [illegible] Gene Tunney arrived from the Cedar Crest Country Club, accompanied by Lou Fink, [illegible] trainer and friends, while the challenger who expects to "come back" dined in from Lincoln Fields with a bevy of his training camp attaches.

Because of the intense feeling of rivalry between the two world-famous gladiators in tonight's championship set-to, they weighed in separately at the Illinois Athletic Club.

They were not see each other until they make their entry into the ring tonight amid the shouting of 100,000 the biggest fight crowd in the history of the prize ring. Chairman Fourtes sies, which included a friendly meeting at the scales, were waved aside for the first time in years.

BETTING AT EVENS.

Betting odds had been hammered down to even money just before the fight, due to the drift of sentiment toward the ex-champion. The odd on a knockout favored Dempsey conceded to be the harder punches of the two, although the majority of the experts favored Tunney to win, because of his youth, [illegible] under fire and boxing ability.

The support of Dempsey in betting was another innovation in the fight game, as throughout ring history champions have always been pronounced favorites. As a matter of fact, public sentiment seems to be entirely with the colorful, stocky Manassa mauler, who refuses to quit and takes it on the chin regardless.

Tunney money was being wagered for the most part by Easterners, while visitors from the Pacific coast and the Middle West were going down on Dempsey. New Yorkers were surprised by the flood of last-minute betting money which was placed in the last 24 hours.

Nick, the Greek, the well-known plunger, was reported to have placed $50,000 on Tunney at even money. He is reported to have won $200,000 at faro here this week.

Other angles o fthe betting were Tunney to beat Dempsey and [illegible] versa, easy money, Dempsey to knock out Tunney, 2 to 1; Tunney to knock out Dempsey, 1 to 10; Dempsey to win on a knockout in the first round, 1 to 2; Tunney to win on a knockout in the first round, 1 to 50.

Special Dispatch to Boston Evening American

(Copyright, 1927, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—There is very little I care to say before I step into the ring with Jack Dempsey. Too much has been said already. As I understand it, this is to be a boxing contest and not a tournament of words.

One thing is absolutely certain: If I lose, to Jack Dempsey tonight I will have no excuse to offer.

I have never been in better condition in my life and I will never be a better boxer. In my opinion when I step through the ropes at [illegible] tonight, I will be entering the very best of my fighting career.

I [illegible] that I believe [illegible] Dempsey [illegible] I have improved very [illegible] I look for a great fight [illegible] young fighter [illegible] I am confident that I will be able to [illegible] onto it with the last ounce of his fighting strength.

SINCERELY hope that Jack Dempsey has [illegible] Philadelphia shock and will give me a fight worthy of his splendid past record.

I want this to be a good fight, a great fight—a decisive battle between two heavyweights evenly matched. It will be fought before the largest crowd ever to witness a boxing exhibition in the history of man and I feel it is up to both of us to give that crowd a clean, fair, hard, fast exhibition. If we do it, it will add more in putting boxing up on the pedestal it deserves than all of the fight bills a hundred law giving bodies could pass.

I don't know how this match will be fought. I have formed no preconceived ideas of just what method I will use against Dempsey this time. There have been dozens of reports coming out of Dempsey's camp as to how he will fight me. I discredit all [illegible]

Dempsey [illegible] will be foolish [illegible] to [illegible] me and aim [illegible] to [illegible] the early rounds.

5 MILLION WAGERED ON FIGHT

Runyon Hears Dempsey Will Enter Ring Odds-On Choice Tonight

By DAMON RUNYON.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—The little torch of civilization sputters feebly against the furious flares of human savagery.

A great prize fight impends. Lo, the veneer of centuries of enlightenment peels away in the brazier of primitive emotions, and a nation dedicated to progress and uplift stands by, breathless, hopeful of blood and broken bones, as two men strip to their breech clouts for a battle with their fists.

In one of the most advanced cities in all the world, on a field memorial to the soldier dead where only a few months ago were heard the altars of the greatest spiritualistic revival this country has ever known—the Eucharistic Congress—Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey meet tonight for the heavyweight championship.

The one an ex-truck driver and railroad clerk, the other a former hobo, these two men are attracting a crowd that will probably number 150,000 men and women, and will include Governors of States, members of Congress and other lawmakers of the land that once outlawed the business of prize fighting, bosses of great corporations, multi-millionaires, society swells, bums, thieves gamblers, and even citizens of the gospel.

They will pay over $2,000,000 to see the strange spectacle. Tunney, the ex-truck driver, and Dempsey, clerk, will receive $1,000,000, and Dempsey, the ex-hobo, already rich by dint of his two fights, will get $450,000.

FIVE MILLION WAGERED.

And at least $5,000,000 more will be wagered on the outcome of the battle, all this in the year of Our Lord 1927, and in a nation where men are walking the streets looking for daily work.

Well might the altruists and the philosophers wag their noggins over this astounding affair and ponder to what purpose we build our great colleges and churches and endeavor to raise our youth to a higher code.

But I believe that cracks like this move well beyond mere puzzling or boring us to sleep at last night's affair. I believe that has astonished itself both as to its might and its remarkers runs the risk of mocking the displeasure of a great many people.

For prize fighting has become big business, and when anything big comes for business one must be very careful what they say about it, though it is small comfort to the victor.

So far this has been mainly the battle of the Balderdash between Tunney and Dempsey, fought in the most amazing atmosphere of social seclusion and haughty posturings that ever surrounded a heavyweight championship event.

"RINGSIDERS" AT DISTANCES

But some of the smoke has cleared away, the men are ready, and the eyes of the world will be focused about 9:30 o'clock tonight on a little oasis of light in the majestic stadium at Soldiers Field on the shore of Lake Michigan, where some of the customers will be so far removed from the spot of action that Tunney and Dempsey will be like a trace of marionettes flapping at the end of wires.

To quote a great man, the boxing scene was rated ballistic greatness, had been punched soggy by old boy high living, who usually gets all these great fighters. Tunney, on the contrary, showed the once amazing Manassa man mauler on his way. That's all there was to the Philadelphia affair, and it is sad, old sorrow in the many art of busting sweeps.

suit builded back to the huge "nest" at Soldiers Field tonight, a little short of what Rickard contemplated in the beginning, but big enough.

CONTENDERS ABSENT.

He expected $3,000,000. The difference between that figure and what he will really draw is probably represented by the advance publicity that the desirable seats had been sold immediately after the box office opened, and by the failure of the East, with a memory of those distant points of Philadelphia Stadium to make the light.

However, the absence of the New Yorkers is not felt, what with the swarming hordes from the Pacific Coast and the Northwest, and from all over the Middle West.

If Tunney should chance to win, the few New Yorkers who are coming are apt to "murder" Chicago, because they are mainly the high shots of the eastern betting world and they will find Dempsey almost an even money choice in Chicago, where they have been making Tunney the favorite by 6 to 5.

FULL WOULDN'T SURPRISE.

Some predict that Dempsey will enter the ring the odds-on-choice, which would seem a ridiculous price to pay for a man who is entitled to a view of his showing in Philadelphia.

He met Jack Sharkey, of Boston, a couple of months ago, and the legs of the old Manassa man mauler looked very wobbly until finally the younger man finally folded up under a body attack with Dempsey's punches dropping here and there about his best hits.

Dempsey did undoubtedly pursue a body attack against Tunney tonight. He knows of no other way to fight. I would not be astounded if the thing wound up in a foul. The referee will be announced at the ringside by the Illinois Boxing Commission, also the judges. There will be two judges, and I am told that they will be prominent citizens of Chicago of known integrity.

This town is certainly sold on Dempsey. Wires the majority of experts are picking Tunney, a surprising number are predicting the Manassa man mauler to win by a knockout. They think he has conditioned well, and that he has regained much of his old form.

ALWAYS CHANCE OF DRAW

Others are picking Tunney to win by a knockout, though Tunney has rarely knocked out an opponent of any ability inside of 10 rounds. The only exception that comes to mind at the moment is Tom Gibbons, and Gibbons was pretty well waned out at the time.

I offer no predictions. I have come to the conclusion that only very foolish persons offer predictions on prize fights. A punncer like Dempsey always has a chance. He can be nine rounds behind and end it with one smash. If Dempsey cannot whip Tunney tonight then there never was a time in his career that Dempsey could have been him, which is what many persons think.

A pusher, a bludgeoning, battering ram like Dempsey, a slicker, a slasher, a lacher is Tunney. Have you yet considered the possibility of a draw will both men on their feet and fighting at the end of 10 rounds.

TUNNEY IS FEARFUL OF TRICKERY

Champion's Board of Strategy Takes Precautions to Prevent Fraud Tonight

By GENE FOWLER.

Lake Villa, Ill., Sept. 22.—The Gene Tunney board of strategy have gone into a huddle here, a star chamber session, in which the champion, his friends William J. McCabe and two prominent business men, whose names were withheld, attended.

The inferred purpose of the executive conference, it was said, was to discuss measures to prevent possible fraud or trickery entering the ten round battle with Jack Dempsey to night at Soldier Field.

The champion himself has refused to say openly that he thinks there is a disposition on the part of anyone to steal his title. Certain of his advisors, however, have been steamed up over the great variety of rumors that have accompanied the shortening of the betting odds on Tunney.

Just what occurred at the parley is not disclosed. It is said that Tunney was assured, however, that he would be accorded every possible protection against fraud.

While the champion presided at the secret conference, there was held in Chicago another meeting in his behalf. It was a sort of dress rehearsal by Gene's manager, Bibb Gibson, his chef second, Jimmy Bronson, and Benny Leonard, retired lightweight champion.

The champion issued a formal statement, in which he expressed confidence in his ability to beat Dempsey in their second encounter.

Tunney is drying out and is at the fighting edge, yet he does not appear irritable. He approached an approximate loss of temper discussing Dempsey's open letter, but quickly regained the Tunney nonchalance.

Tunney called his manager on the telephone, asking about the weather forecast, after the manner of transatlantic aviators. When informed by Gibson that the weather man looked for a cool evening, Tunney was elated. He said:

"I am something of a cold weather fighter. I like it that way."

The champion and party will take up quarters at the Sherman bungalow, a 20 room palace atop the Hotel Sherman. This was occupied by President Calvin Coolidge and by the Prince of Wales. It has its own kitchen and will be completely isolated from the throngs that surge in the loop district.

There will be no telephone communication to the champion's quarters, and he will be accessible to no one outside of his advisors and those in charge of the fight.

If Tunney's plan to sleep after an early dinner until he is called to proceed to his dressing room at Soldiers Field Gene certainly likes his sleep.

A more serene champion never lived than Tunney. Perhaps it is confidence, but perhaps, too, it is indifference, for Tunney seems incapable of entertaining any such thought as defeat.

BOBBY JONES IN HUB; PICKS DEMPSEY

By GEORGE W. GRIMM.

We thought it would be a relief from all the fight talk that fills the ears of the sport world. Not that the fight isn't the biggest thing in the open now, but we always believed that golfers would rather talk golf than any other subject under the sun.

We have been disillusioned.

And Bobby Jones, world's champion amateur golfer is the one who shattered our belief.

When Bobby arrived at the Copley-Plaza today on his way home from a trip to Canada, we thought this a good chance for a red hot golf story.

"Good afternoon Mr. Jones," we said by way of introduction.

"Good afternoon, Sir Grimm."

"I say, Bobby, will you defend your British open title next year?"

"Well, I am very greatly interested in the National League pennant race. I'm rooting hard for the Pirates. I hope they come through."

"Do you use a mashie or a niblick when you are in a trap?" we countered.

"I don't know much about prize fights, but I think Dempsey should win."

"Will you take part in any tournaments this Winter?"

"Babe Ruth may be a wonderful hitter, but I think I can knock a golf ball further than Babe can hit a baseball."

"It's a nice day, Mr. Jones."

"Well, Mr. Grimm, I really did not expect anyone would find me here. I'm on a vacation with Mrs. Jones. I don't know how you found me, but I suppose I may as well tell you.

"I don't expect to do much golfing for a while now. I don't know whether I will defend my British open title or not. There is plenty of time to think about my golf future after I get home."

Seizing our green volume list, we bade Mr. and Mrs. Jones good-bye and proceeded to get our next golf story. (Bobby said he was going to see anyone who doesn't play golf.

K. O. BY JACK IN 3D, SAYS FLYNN

By LEO P. FLYNN
Manager of Jack Dempsey

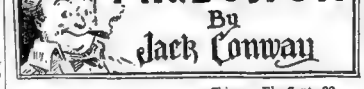
Chicago, Sept. 22.—Dempsey is the greatest heavyweight I ever saw and he is fit to fight tonight like the real Dempsey.

I predict a knockout in his favor in three rounds if Gene is man enough about that open letter to start fighting from the first bell and a knockout in seven rounds even if Tunney takes the defensive from the start.

Dempsey has not been handicapped in his training this time. He has had no mental worries and is full of fight and confidence. Jack knows he is himself and when he knows that the world realizes he is a great fighter.

Dempsey is better now than he has been at any time since he whipped Billy Miske in 1920. Reiles what that means. It means he will be the only heavyweight champion that ever came back by eleven o'clock tonight.

All I ask is fair refereeing and correct judging. With that the fight is "in" now.



Chicago, Ill., Sept. 22.

MY DEAR PUBLIC:

I'm all set for the shooting tonight. As long as the boys only load up with six ounce gloves, six feet of tape and the usual amount of gauze, I won't take a nose dive under the ring. But in the event the party gets rough I have a spot picked out for myself.

The mob around here is singing, "The Gang's All Here." In my frequent parades here and there I have bumped into Dave Lumansky, Dan Carroll, Charley Solomon, Bill McDonnell, Joe Jacobs and about everybody else.

Jack Sharkey and Johnny Buckley have been here for a week and so are now a part of the local scenery.

The press agents are talking about the millions which are being bet on the fight, but to date I haven't seen a thin dime put up. And I have been sleeping and drinking (of course, without violating any laws) with the gang which has the heavy jack.

The reason is simple. The boys feel that Tunney should win on form but they have come to the conclusion that boxing form doesn't win battles in these days of million dollar gates.

It seems to be in the air that Dempsey will win regardless of how good Tunney may be. Tex Rickard is on the job for Dempsey, though stating to the press that he does not care which heavyweight grabs the honors.

"Rickard is hoping Dempsey wins" I remarked to one close to Tex.

"Maybe he is doing more than merely hoping," was the answer I got.

There is leeway in the air, but even in Chicago they stop at some things. The Illinois Boxing Commission appears to be in earnest in its effort to prevent any Jesse James stuff in the ring as Sullers Find.

The Commish has announced that a couple of big business men will act as judges. Maybe they don't know the difference between a couple of boxing gloves and a bunch of flowers, but they will at least be honest. Why is not a recommendation by itself not enough.

The referee will be allowed to remain in the ring only as long as he shoots straight. If he attempts any wise stuff, he will be yanked out of the ring by his neck and another put in his place. This may not be quite ethical, but it will put the fear of something or other into any crook's heart.

The Commish also reserves to itself the right to re-write the decision if it isn't O. K. I don't think it seriously intends to do this. But in the event a raw finding should be handed out, the Commish wants to leave the door open for action.

If there's a foul, a convention of doctors, judges and commissioners will be called to determine the winner. Unlike Massachusetts and New York, the referee has no right to pass a ruling when a boxer sets up the claim of foul. He merely must scan the bout and refer the matter to the high mighties. The latter examines the boxer who claims foul, the referee over with the judges and commissioners and then renders the official finding.

The wise boys who like the advance information on how things are liable to happen in one of these championship quarrels have been busily trying to find out who the referee is going to be. I think they would have shown better judgment if they had spent a little time looking up the doctors. Some medico, with absolutely no knowledge of the fight racket, may be the one to decide whether Dempsey or Tunney essay tapping the victor.

Anyhow, it will be all over in a few hours. Then if you happened to name the winner, you can tell the boys in the office you're a smart Alec. If you have the wrong man, you can listen while the gang nails you as a bum. It was always thus.

I have my train reservations on the Twentieth Century to Boston tomorrow. So somebody else will have to step to bat and take care of the beer situation out here.

Yours for an honest fight.

P. S.—Dropped around to make another one of those speeches at the Lithuanian Chamber of Commerce, where a regiment of millionaires presented Jack Sharkey with a silver loving cup. Met a bird who owns a bank, and he promised to bankroll me when the occasion requires. A great town is Chi. I like Tunney.

MOORE HAS CALL AT FULLBACK

There was a question a week ago as to how long Tom Moore would remain as Harvard's fullback.

No such interrogation prevails today. In short, Moore has delivered the goods and Coach Arnold Horween now has three backs ready for action.

Dave Guarnaccia and Joe Crosby teamed with Moore, form a power ful offensive kick to any varsity, and provided that Dana Kelly can hold on as quarterback, Horween will not have to worry about his first string backfield.

It took a scrimmage to show Moore's worth. He has made the varsity mainly because of his ability to pass and kick. Dana Kelly pried him out as a carrier in last night's initial scrimmage and how Moore did go. He picked the second team up to pieces and gave promise of developing into quite a line plunger this Fall.

His kicking has been a mite shady of late but Horween feels that Vic Kennard can bring him along. His passing ability remains to be seen in that Horween used few passes in the scrimmage. As an interferer, the second team play es claims that he has no equal on the varsity squad.

Horween noted plenty of weaknesses in that first scrimmage and today intends to iron them out. He has ordered two scrimmages. No scrimmage will be held but dummy scrimmage will be in full order.

JACK TO WIN

nor be named until the husky warriors step into the ring tonight. There will be six referees summoned to attend the show, and four of them will work in the preliminary bouts. One of the four will draw down the three assignment.

It is generally believed hereabouts that the choice rests between four—Dave Miller, Dave Barry, Joe Chovnski and Emil Thierry. All are capable and experienced, and the commissioner admitted that the third man in the ring would be a bird who had been refereeing in this section at some time or other. That eliminated the amateurs and former fighters who have never showed in Chicago.

The village is packed to the rafters with fight fans now, and the ticket sale has picked up a bit. The gate The Dempsey crowd was looking for will go two million and a half, but I more odds, but not finding any not much more.

Fastest Four in America Proves Its Claim to Title

Dodge Averages 67.35 miles per hour in Beating All Other Fours in Atlantic City A. A. A. Race

The Atlantic City (N.J.) Speedway Association, without Dodge Brothers assistance or knowledge, bought a Dodge Brothers Four and entered it in a Labor Day race for Four cylinder stock cars. Four cars of other makes also competed. All were strictly stock cars as required by the rules of the association.

The race was for 25 miles—to determine which was "The Fastest Four in America."

The Dodge won.

Its average speed for the entire race, from a standing start, was 67.35 miles per hour (officially timed by A. A. A.).

Generous confirmation, to say the least, of the modest claim of "Mile-a-minute Performance!"

Even more remarkable than the speed, however, is the fact that the car had been driven only 10 days and yet was able to withstand this difficult test without once stopping.

Thus the race not only offers conclusive proof of the Dodge's superiority in speed, but stands also as a glowing tribute to the rugged materials and excellent workmanship that go to make it—

Anniversary Hints That Will Help

BY MARTHA LEE.

EVERY day in the year is somebody's wedding anniversary and most every day some one writes me for suggestions as to how to celebrate, so today I've compiled for you celebrations appropriate to the various anniversaries.

First year cotton wedding second year, paper wedding third year, leather wedding; fifth year, wooden wedding; tenth year, tin wedding fifteenth year, crystal wedding twenty-five years, silver wedding fifty years, golden wedding.

Invitations for the cotton wedding may be written or printed on stiffly starched white muslin squares to carry out the cotton scheme. The table should be all in cotton, the plate, cups, and glass to be of cotton batting cut in circular form. For a centerpiece use a basket covered with cotton tied with white ribbon.

For place cards use little rolls of cotton to which are attached the cards and which when unrolled, become small favors. Branches placed about the room on which are balls of cotton will add to the festiveness of the affair.

The menu may include:

Chicken Patties — Hot Rolls
Celery Hearts — Olives
Fruit Salad
Cocoanut Cream in the form of Balls
Angel Cake Rolled in Cocoanut
Coffee — Mints

If a jolly diversion is desired, cotton picking will supply this need from raw cotton and brown tissue paper make a number of imitation cotton balls, scatter these about the room, hiding some and having others in full view. Divide the company into two groups and ask the two sides to see which can most fast and make the largest ball from the cotton rolls. No prize is needed as it will be difficult to tell which has really collected the most cotton unless they are weighed, but it will cause much laughter and fun.

For the paper wedding the rooms may be made festive with crepe paper streamers in any desired color. Flowers in crepe paper rose baskets should be used in abundance. The dining cloth and napkins should be of crepe paper in a preferred design. Most of the table decorations can be obtained in decorated pasteboard or the china may be hidden in paper frills. An appropriate centerpiece consists of a basket of paper flowers in a crepe paper basket.

A suggested menu is:

Chicken or Oyster Patties
Celery Hearts
Pineapple, Cherry and Nut Salad
Cream Cheese Sandwiches
Orange Marmalade sandwiches
Coffee Mousse in Paper Boxes
Slices of Wedding Cake in Paper Wrappings
Assorted Cakes
Bonbons in Paper Cases
Coffee

A paper bridal contest will produce a lasting good time if some thing of this kind is desired. Give each guest a square of paper with directions to tie some kind of flower or animal. When the time limit is called the creations are collected and hung on the wall for exhibition.

For the third year celebration, four or cushions and table covers may be in evidence and any leather articles at hand may be used to work into the decorative scheme.

The menu may comprise:

Cold Chicken and Ham in Aspic with Mayonnaise
Nut Bread Sandwiches
Cheese Almond Sandwiches
Cuban Fruit Salad
Layer Cake Squares with Chocolate Filling and Whipped Cream
Coffee

A leather contest will be quite interesting in this connection. Display on a table various kinds of leather goods, each article having a card with a number attached. The group may include books with leather bindings, moccasins, etc.

The fifth year brings the wooden wedding, when the invitations may be written on birch bark, strips of shavings or paper in imitation of birch bark. Long curled shavings will fit into the decorative scheme nicely, fastened in festoons on the walls and extending from chandeliers to the picture mouldings. No cloth should be used on the refreshment table, but plate doilies of paper in imitation of birch bark will be quite in order. A wooden bowl of flowers forms the centrepiece and tiny wooden shoes will hold the nuts and bonbons. The dishes for both table and service should be of wood as far as possible. A small wooden chopping bowl may hold the salad.

The menu may include:

Orange on Wooden Plates
Celery Soup with Whipped Cream in Wooden Bowls
Rice Croquettes — Meat Loaf
Nut and Fruit Salad on Shredded Lettuce
Topped with Cheese Straws Placed Criss-cross
Almont Caramel Chocolate Nuts
Cake — Coffee — Bonbons

It will be amusing to have a contest in wooden faces to see who can produce the most wooden expression. As ideas will vary, there will be quite a variety.

Lack of space prevents my giving the rest of the celebrations here, but if you would like to have them, send your name and address and a two-cent stamp, and I'll be glad to send them to you.

Faithfully yours
MARTHA LEE.

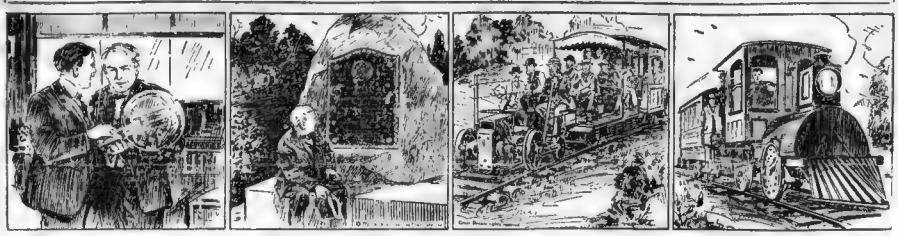
LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



In 1922 Edison visited the General Electric Company at Schenectady, New York. While there, William D. Coolidge, a lighting expert, conducted him about the laboratories and showed him a new lamp of 100,000 candlepower, a direct descendant of his first eight candlepower "baby." Now lamps of 150,000 candlepower are made.

On May 16, 1926, the Edison Pioneers (composed of Edison's associates of Menlo Park days) dedicated a memorial at Menlo Park. Mrs. Edison unveiled the granite boulder with a bronze tablet. It faces the Lincoln Highway and says, "On this site 1876-1882 Thomas Alva Edison began his work of service to the world."

Edison's adventures into electricity led him to experiment with an electric railway. In 1880 he built in the Menlo Park grounds a small road. On May 13 the road went into operation. The entire laboratory staff tried to scramble aboard. The engine started, but the gears could not stand the strain and went to pieces.

By 1882 Edison had made a number of improvements in his electric locomotive and had built a real car as a "trailer." In this picture Edison is running his improved locomotive, which was really the forerunner of the giant electric locomotives of today. He even originated the third-rail system.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By Marceline d'Alroy

SOME WIVES take their Husbands for BETTER or worse.
Others just take them
For GRANTED.
There are, of course, many Ways husbands CAN be Taken, but none should be Taken too SERIOUSLY.
HUSBANDS like to be Treated KINDLY, touched
Lightly, handled GENTLY,
And generally
Catered to, CARESSED and Cared for just like
Other MEN. Or else they Like to be LEFT ALONE.
A husband, after all, is
Only a MAN.
Married, it does not CHANGE the Brute, though
In time it may
TAME him.
But as they undoubtedly
Mean well, they should be Broken in GENTLY. The
Husband who is allowed to SAY all he wants
At home rarely DOES much
Outside.
It is the MAN who is
NOT allowed to
Get things off his CHEST
That "steps" out.
So let them RAVE.

New recipe a champion traveller
Has it reached your town?

HERE'S a recipe so delicious, yet so practical and economical, that it has covered the country in no time—passing from women to women. Try it! You'll agree that it was a clever housewife who first thought of using Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk for mayonnaise. It makes a rich, creamy dressing, marvelously smooth. It economizes on salad oil—saves time in the making—and absolutely prevents curdling or separating.

Condensed Milk Mayonnaise

1 egg yolk
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup salad oil
Few grains cayenne
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Beat the egg with a Dover egg-beater and add the other ingredients in the order listed, beating each in thoroughly before adding another.

Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk is a remarkably rich, smooth blend of full-cream country milk and finest sugar. Super-rich—because most of the water has been removed. Super-smooth because the sugar is blended in by a method you can't equal at home. It is the best form of milk to use in all dishes that require both milk and sugar. Watch this space for other splendid recipes . . . And be sure to try Standard in your coffee, too. It creams-and-sugars deliciously—at one-half the cost of cream and sugar! . . . Get it from your grocer today! Remember—it keeps without ice!

Serve More French Dressing!
Mix it at the table—this way

Watch a successful hostess serve French Dressing—in less than two minutes, right at the table, she prepares a rich, piquant Dressing—more delicious because it's FRESH!

Try it yourself—

Mix ½ cup Mazola, 3 tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper. Beat thoroughly and serve. (If a sweeter dressing is desired, add a teaspoon of Karo, Red Label.)

This is a typical recipe that will prove the purity and quality of Mazola for all salad dressings.

I use Rinso for the family wash and for the house cleaning, too. It's almost unbelievable how quickly Rinso soaks the dirt from the clothes and makes them snowy and now look long! And without any scrubbing at all! I'm mighty proud of my Rinso wash, I can tell you! And it sure is a labor saver! I get through with my weekly cleaning in half the time now, and you ought to see how bright and spotless it makes the woodwork, floors and windows. It's wonderful for dishwashing, too!

Mrs. Alice E. Connor, 5 Wayanoke Street, Ashmont, Mass.

Millions use Rinso. Thousands write as letters like this.

These rich safe suds soak out dirt -clothes get whiter!
No scrubbing—no boiling

TINY grains of soap that dissolve in a jiffy and make the hardest water soft, rich and sudsy.

That's Rinso! There's nothing like it. It soaks dirt and stains free without one bit of hard rubbing. No boiling, either—for soaking in Rinso soaks clothes so clean they're actually sterilized!

Safe—and so economical!

Best of all, Rinso gets the wash whiter, brighter than ever!

Even the most soiled parts—cuffs, hems and edges—come snowy with just a gentle rub or two between the fingers. They don't need to be scrubbed threadbare. And Rinso is so safe! Contains no acids or bleaches of any description.

With Rinso, you need nothing else on washday. It takes the place of bar soap chips, powders. It's so economical. Feel how heavy the package is. Rinso is closely packed granulated soap—not fluffy chips.

Try Rinso this washday!

You'll never know how easy washday can be until you try Rinso. See how it saves your hands from getting red and washworn. See how it gets the week's wash the whitest white you ever saw.

Get Rinso at your grocer's and for economy and best results, follow the easy directions on the package.

Best for washing machines

Because it is efficient and safe, and because it gets clothes whiter and brighter, Rinso is highly recommended by the makers of 31 leading washing machines.

A Story of Sylvia Byrant, Stenographer, Among the Money Crowd

CHAPTER 51

"Fair—ha! God, Sylvia—it's a wonder I don't feel like killing you! Fair—when you led me on—when you listened to me and gave me hope to feed on. Yes, it was fair when you told me you cared more for me than anyone else—when you said to wait a month for your answer—when you knew the condition I was in. You let me go away every night with every nerve in my body quivering—when you pretended that your lips were sacred and that a kiss from the man that loved you would defile them. I've done some rotten things in my life—but I'd pretty near match your performance up against the meanest things I've ever done.

His eyes Sylvia saw were in deep pools of shadow, the skin of his face was tightly drawn, his lips set. The futility of trying to stop him occurred to her; she had let herself in for this. It was a penalty that she must expect to pay.

"If you think I deserve this you might as well go ahead," she said steadily. "It doesn't change the facts and it may relieve you."

"Oh as soon as you mentioned tonight that you'd found Ladd I knew the game was up for me," he went on. "You'd always had your eyes on him—but there wasn't much of a chance before. I mean when he was cock of the walk. You fell for that intense, high-power stunt of his—but it didn't do you any good and you were willing to go out in the moonlight with me—with the only other man that was close at hand."

She appealed to him, he thought he was hurting her but she realized he was only lashing himself. "That's not the Stuart Gifford that I thought I might love. There has been much that was beautiful and worth preserving between us—do you want to destroy it all?"

He made an effort to collect himself. "Whether what I'm saying is true or not, it seems that way to me now."

They came to the entrance of her house and, from habit, they stopped.

"Is this, then, the last?" he asked in a strangled voice

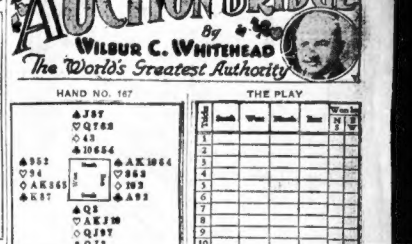
AUCTION BRIDGE

By Wilbur C. Whitehead

The World's Greatest Authority

HAND NO. 167



South is the dealer. What is the proper bidding and play?

In the next issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Fill out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i.e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Yesterday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

Salient Points of the Bidding

South's pre-emptive bid of three Spades was conventional. West's double was made with the expectation that his partner would use his judgment as to whether to make a bid or pass. That is, the double of a pre-emptive bid of three of a suit gives partner the option. East, without a defensive trick in his hand against a Spade bid, bids four Diamonds in preference to his exceptionally weak four-card Heart suit and in preference to a business pass. South, realizing that his side Kings are probably worthless by reason of the strength shown by West by his double, and therefore having apparently no side tricks, wisely passes. West, though he has passed for a Heart response from his partner, must perforce also the Diamond bid to stand. North bids four Spades. Placing West by reason of his double, with the King and Jack of Hearts, and lying over them with his tenace, and having but a singleton of the opponents' suit and three cards of his partner's, North's assist was amply justified. West realizes that South's bid showed length and strength in Spades with little on the side, and therefore assumes that North's assist was because of supporting high cards, thus reducing the potential value of his three tenace suits. He therefore passes rather than double the five Diamonds.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1. Declarer places West with the Ace of Diamonds, and leads the King to Dummy's singleton to prevent East from securing the lead, hoping that West upon taking the trick will switch to Clubs, enabling Declarer's King to make.

Trick 4. West sees the possibility of three Club tricks if he himself does not lead the suit. Accordingly he leads a Diamond to force Dummy's last trump and put him in the lead.

Trick 6. Declarer realizes the hopelessness of the Club situation. His only chance is that the Ace will fall in two rounds, making his King good. Accordingly he leads a low Club from Dummy and ducks, intending to repeat the Club lead later if necessary and again hold off with the King.

KINDNESS WINS FOLKS

By Lucy Lowell

THE little girl who wrote me asking how she could make people like her might take a tip from one of the wise sayings of Benjamin Franklin.

This youngster complained that she always was timid of meeting new folks. She never could think of anything very brilliant to say to them, and she thought it likely they would consider her dead stupid, or perhaps downright disagreeable.

Here is what Benjamin Franklin wrote about conversation:

"The wit of conversation consists more in finding it in others than in showing a great deal yourself. He who goes out of your company, pleased with his own facetiousness and ingenuity will the sooner come into it again. Most men had rather please than admire you and seek less to be instructed and diverted than approved and applauded, and it is certainly the most delicate sort of pleasure to please another.

"But that sort of wit, which employs itself insolently in criticising and censuring the words and sentiments of others in conversation, is absolute folly; for it answers none of the ends of conversation. He who uses it neither improves others, is improved himself, nor pleases anybody."

In other words, it is easy enough to make people like you—especially new acquaintances—if you will take care to be a good listener.

And if, when you do talk, you refrain from saying anything which may hurt or hold up to ridicule anybody, no matter how clever you may be able to make such a speech.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE "love" that comes in a cocktail glass or a pocket-flask soon evaporates!

Most of the flapper's "wickedness" and sophistication are like the foreign posters plastered all over the carcass of somebody who has never been abroad—just for show.

The difficult thing about living with a genius is that you never can tell whether he is "suffering" from a fit of indigestion or from a fit of inspiration.

One reason why we never hear of all the GOOD men there are in the world is because a man takes so much more pride and pleasure in bragging of his little vices than he does in advertising his big virtues.

* * *

When a man begs for your "love," what he really wants is your flattery, your kisses and your coddling—a combination quite as satisfying and a great deal less nerve-wearing.

In her dreams, every flapper fondly pictures herself as an island of sorcery completely surrounded by hopelessly infatuated men.

Flattering a man or reproving him is like after-dinner speaking: its whole effectiveness consists in knowing when to STOP.

The average man will make more fuss and noise over losing his penknife or his pet collar-button than over losing his heart or his reputation.

* * *

When a man marries his stenographer, he may not get the blind devotion of a domestic wife or the fascinating coquetry of a practiced charmer; but he DOES get someone who knows what it means to come home at night dead tired and yearning for nothing but food, silence and the hand-clasp of one who understands!

BOY'S BODY WAS COVERED WITH SEVERE ITCHING RASH

Skin now without a blemish

Ketchum, Me., July 13:—"About seven years ago my nephew developed a severe case of skin trouble which looked like eczema. His face, hands and whole body were covered with the trouble and his skin became raw from scratching. Many soaps and ointments were tried without success before Resinol Soap and Ointment were prescribed and used. The first few applications stopped the itching and soon he was entirely healed. He now has the loveliest skin I ever saw and, thanks to Resinol Soap and Ointment, no unsightly blotches mar the beauty of his complexion."—(Signed) Vivian M. Ingalls, Vernon Street.

Brooding Over Illness

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

WHEN you ask Grandma Gray how she feels today, she says, "Oh, 'bout as well as usual, I guess." That is, she gives that answer if she has no particular pain. Otherwise he will tell you all about her pain, how it started, what remedies she has used and what effect each one had on some other organ of her frail body.

When you ask Grandpa Gray how he feels this morning he will answer, "Not much. Not much." Then he will give you a detailed account of his bodily disorders and the treatment thereof.

A woman who has known them for thirty years said that she had never seen either of them when they admitted that they were feeling well.

They have worked hard, lived simply, reared a big family of children and are nearly without sin as two human beings could be. But they are of those children is "sickly" one, and he was always too busy playing or eating or sleeping or running away from home to be sick.

Can you see the family of children sitting around the fireside or sitting at the dinner table listening respectfully to the complaints of their elders? It is easy to imagine the children taking up the same line of conversation and exchanging accounts of incurable acres and sleepless nights.

The more John talked and thought about his cold, the more he suffered from having it.

The more Amy talked and thought about her backache the worse the back ached her.

The more Lucille talked and thought about the pain in her head, the more the head throbbed.

There seemed to be some sort of virtue in being physically unfit, and none of the children was willing to be outdone by brothers or sisters.

Keep the thought of illness in mind, week in and week out, and it is bound to induce or aggravate illness.

It may be that people who always reply, "Fine and dandy; why shouldn't I?" get on your nerves. You may be an orthodox, matter-of-fact person who has no patience with this "better and better every day in every way" doctrine.

A long time ago I knew a woman who had eleven children of all ages and sizes. Every now and then she would whirl upon her brood and cry out:

"Here! Here! What does this mean? No one of you have taken a bit of medicine this week. Mabel, go take a pill. Alice, where is that tonic? Get up from there, Minnie, and rub yourself with that liniment."

There are still plenty of parents who give medicine on general principles and insist that their children are ill upon the slightest provocation.

When children need simple, home remedies any sensible mother will doctor them as she sees fit. But for goodness sake, let them forget aches and pains and indisposition as much as possible.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

THOUSANDS of people are still pouring into Chicago to attend the greatest social event of the season tonight, Tex Rickard's petting party.

IN a few hours now, the two big knuckle merchants will be broadcasting their fists in each other's faces.

TUNNEY says he expects to knock Dempsey out in the 1st round. The boxing regulations won't let him do it any sooner.

HE'S made up his mind to retain the championship if he has to use both fists.

HE hopes to lift Jack's chin so high that Dempsey will have to stand on a chair to brush his teeth.

WHEN he gets through changing Dempsey's map, even Randy McNally won't be able to read it.

HE'S going to knock him back to Hollywood and cheat the Southern Pacific out of a passenger.

LEO P. FLYNN, however, says that if Dempsey were a vegetarian, Tunney would still be his meat.

WHEN Jack swings on him, Gene will be flying all over Chicago without a plane.

HE'LL knock him so cold that the people in the bleachers will probably get pneumonia.

HE says that in the fourth round the referee will have a chance to do his arithmetic lesson.

AND as far as Dempsey is concerned, they can get one who stutters.

THE only thing that'll keep Tunney from going through the roof is the law of gravity, and Dempsey may even break the law.

HE has nicknamed Gene the "20th Century Limited" because he expects him to leave Chicago in several sections.

GIBSON says that Dempsey may be Flynn's ace, but Tunney is going to trump him.

BOTH fighters are so confident of putting each other to sleep that Mr. Rickard has had twin beds installed at the ringside.

THE scrap has all the cauliflower earmarks of a regular home busting carnival and the promoters have promised that somebody will be knocked out even if it has to be the referee.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for published smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings," Boston Evening American.

My little niece, aged three and one-half, was visiting me. We were sitting on my piazza and she was much interested in the antics of a dog that belonged to a neighbor. She wanted to go over and play with him. I said, "You had better not go over there, Eleanor, Patsy might snap at you, he does not like strangers." Quickly came the reply, "I am not a stranger, auntie, I'm an American!"

HAMBURG LINE BUYS SHIP

The Hamburg-American Line has purchased the steamship Neptunia, from her Italian owners, and will add the vessel, renamed the Oceana, to its fleet of cruising steamships. She is the only German steamer used exclusively for pleasure cruising.

The Hamburg-American Line is a pioneer in the cruising field, having inaugurated the "pleasure cruise" during the time that Albert Ballin was managing director, and in 1890 the Augusta Victoria made the first pleasure cruise to the Mediterranean and Orient. Later this service was extended to Norway, the Baltic Sea and Russia, the West Indies, South America and around the world.

At the present time, the Line's cruising fleet includes the 20,000ton steamships Resolute and Reliance, and next year the two 9,600 ton motorships, Rio Orinoco and Rio Magdalena, now being built, will make Summer cruises to Polar regions and Winter cruises to the West Indies.

According to Emil Lederer, vice president of the United American Lines, general agents for the Hamburg-American Line in this country, the Oceana is scheduled to leave Hamburg January 17 on a 17-day cruise to Genoa; she will then make two 16-day cruises to the Orient, and an Easter cruise to the western Mediterranean.

FLORIDA EXHIBIT DRAWS MANY

At the Eastern States Exposition being held at Springfield this week, the Seaboard Air Line exhibit "Florida and the Great Southeast" has been the cause of considerable favorable comment.

The exhibit consists of motion pictures of actual scenes of the activities in the States of North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, and Florida, all of new which are reached by the Seaboard Air Line System, and which has been instrumental in the recent rapid growth of the section. Facts on the industrial and agricultural development, by a lecturer of wide experience are also given at the exhibit.

The object of the exhibit is to inform the people of New England of this section of the country and its possibilities.

NEW LINERS WILL ENTER N. Y.-FLORIDA SERVICE

The commissioning of the steamship Shawnee and her sister ship, the Iroquois, rounds out the huge building program inaugurated two years ago by the Clyde Steamship Company, involving in that time the expenditure of more than $14,000,000 and adding six magnificent ships to the American merchant marine.

These six splendid ships, known collectively as "Clyde" liners, are in the order of their construction and commissioning, are the sister ships Cherokee, Apache, Shawnee and Algonquin, and the later members, the sister ships Iroquois and Shawnee.

"The "Iroquois" and "Shawnee" which will enter the New York-Florida service this fall, are 7,000 tons with a speed of 22 knots, making the 1,000 miles trip, New York to Miami in two days.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Let Us Test the Nation's Power to Conserve Its Oil Supply

When President Coolidge appointed his Federal Oil Conservation Board in December, 1924, he intended that Board to prevent the wicked waste of the nation's oil, which has since occurred. When the President appointed the Board we were taking 1,852,000 barrels per day out of the ground. Today the daily production averages more than 2,500,000 barrels. Secretary of the Interior Work, chairman of the President's Board, says that we are now producing a million barrels a day more than the country needs. The surplus can only be got rid of by selling it in competition with cheap coal.

We might sit by and watch this with indifference if the national safety were not involved. But oil is our most necessary munition of war. Without it we cannot move our armies or fleets. We cannot manufacture crude oil. We can only mine it. Our limited resources are being destroyed. If this continues, within a few years we shall be dependent upon oil imported from other nations. Most of the oil of the world, outside of the United States, has already been rounded up by Great Britain.

No thinking American, from the President down, wants to be prematurely dependent upon foreign supplies of oil. It was only eight years ago that Sir Edward Edgar, leading British financier, wrote:

"All the known oil fields and all the likely oil fields, outside of the United States itself, are in British hands or under British management or control or financed by British capital. It will be within the limits of the commanding position the future has in store for us to hold up the entire world to ransom in the distribution and price of this vital essential."

This is what President Coolidge had in mind when, on December 19, 1924, he said in his letter appointing the Federal Oil Conservation Board:

"It is evident that the present method of capturing our oil deposits is wasteful to an alarming degree. . . . It is even probable that the supremacy of nations may be determined by the possession of available petroleum and its products."

For nearly three years we have waited patiently for the oil industry voluntarily to solve this pressing national problem. The oil industry has offered no voluntary solution and admits it knows of none. Meanwhile, its leaders describe the present competition in waste as a malignant disease. Unfortunately the malignant disease is not attacking only the profits and the financial soundness of the oil companies. It is attacking the industrial future and security of the nation.

If Congress has any power to protect the national welfare and provide for the common defense, it must have power in this case. Let us have a law providing for governmental control of this oil waste and reasonable regulation of oil prices. If, as the oil men claim, such a law is not constitutional, and the nation has not now the power to protect itself, the sooner we find it out the better, so that we can remedy the lack by a constitutional amendment.

It May Come

One Plane for One Man, Small Price

THEY BUILT IT, PRICE $600

Charles Hill and Michael Tortolini built the tiny airplane part of which you see in this picture. They did the work on it themselves, at a total cost of $600. It goes seventy-five miles an hour, beating any express train, and can be stored away in an ordinary garage.

This is encouraging, showing what two ingenious young men can do, and perhaps foreshadowing the future when each man will have his own flying machine, the machines turned out by the tens of thousands and costing not much more than a first-class bicycle.

No man can predict the future, and no man can set any limit with certainty as to what the future may produce.

In this little machine, a man actually can fly at the rate of seventy-five miles an hour with a very light engine.

Engines are made now so that one-horsepower, which in a horse would weigh more than a thousand pounds, weighs only a pound and a half, and in some cases only a pound and two ounces.

The ancients believed in Mercury, the god of commerce, and they showed him with wings on his heels that enabled him to fly through the air, "The Winged Mercury."

It is not beyond the limits of possibility that the individual man may possess a flying apparatus that will transport him through the air at almost any speed desirable, enabling him to alight gradually and safely.

What men CAN IMAGINE they CAN DO.

And we are imagining a great many new things in these days of scientific wonders.

WATER CONDUCIVE TO LAZINESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHAT is there about water that is so conducive to laziness?

The sleepiest towns I ever saw, when I was a boy, were the river towns in Illinois and Missouri, where I used to go fishing.

Nobody moves so slowly as a fisherman.

No class of people have such an air of infinite leisure as they who loaf along river wharves.

People instinctively go to the seaside to rest.

You can sit interminably and look at the ocean or a lake. You cannot do that with land.

The tiringest days I have ever led, days when doing nothing whatever was reduced to a science, were those on an ocean liner. There it is impossible to work. You have no time, only eternity.

I watched a loafer once standing on the quay at the bay of Naples. Two hours I watched him. He did nothing but "change legs."

And the most solemn of all birds are storks and cranes, who watch the water.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

ON Federal street is a large bank-ing business. This particular bank is the fifth largest in the country. It has branches in South America and Everett. Last night as we passed some of the heavily barred windows we looked in. Clerks were working in isolated spots.

Just for some change we talked to the elevator man. He asked our name. We told him. He said: "Pleased to meet you, Mr. Flynn." Next time we might be President Coolidge.

He took us up to talk to a watchman. Every half-hour the bank watchman must key his clock. If the clock is not rung, somewhere down in police barracks a bell rings and the investigation committee comes armed with clubs, revolvers and riot guns.

* * *

Private police and watchmen patrol the entire financial district at night. Within and without the watch is kept.

* * *

During the day those entrusted with money are closely watched. The watch is not espionage. It is a general observance of the man's habits, manners, actions towards fellow employes and speech. The young banker who expects to become a bank president some day must be conservative.

* * *

He must be conservative in his associates, his thoughts, clothing, recreations and living. It would never do for a cashier to lose his idea of trust and bet $1,000,000 of the company's money on Dempsey.

THE VALUE OF A SMILE IN OUR DAILY LIFE

WHAT a little thing, sometimes, can change a day of joy into one of despondency!

On the top of the mountain, freedom and happiness, while over the other side lurks danger and despair.

Out of your home whistling and back in it at night, quivering with contacts distasteful and humiliating. It is a very tiny, fine line, that division between joy and sorrow.

What are you making it, for those whom you meet?

Are you unnecessarily blasting hopes, with your pessimism?

Are you cross and crabbed with youth and its enthusiasms?

Are you dictatorial at times when it paralyzes action and makes puppets of those around you, who might serve you better if you kept stiff?

Just what is your idea of bringing happiness to those who are near you, either in passing or at home?

It is not rich gifts, but a smile or a pleasant word that makes the world a good place.

You have to work day in and day out with folk, to know them.

You like consideration. Give it.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

OTTO KAHN recently gave young men ten rules for achieving success. One of them was—

"USE YOUR IMAGINATION."

What is imagination?

We do not know. With all our research we haven't the slightest clew to the nature, source or scope of imagination. It is still as mysterious as electricity—and as potent. But we do know that it exists to some degree in every normal life, and we do know that it can be developed and, if rightly used, will perform amazing feats for us.

Imagination wings a man. It is his spiritual aeroplane. It sets him free from the narrow plane of his own self and environment and lets him explore other spirits and other planes of life.

It gives him vision; and if he then backs that vision with wise and determined effort, he can achieve that which he has not seen.

John D. Rockefeller did not rise to power through the drudgery of his hands, the slow cogitations of his human brain. He rose on the flash and leap of that mysterious winged thing within him—his imagination. He was poor, but his imagination enabled him to see where riches lay hidden. He was weak and obscure but his imagination revealed power to him. Then his thrift and industry acquired a focus, and he achieved.

Imagination can lead to greater heights than those of material success. Pasteur originally knew no more than any other struggling scientist and had no better tools. But there was one thing in him that leaped beyond his scant equipment into new realms of wisdom—his imagination. He did not KNOW, but he IMAGINED. And because he IMAGINED he DISCOVERED.

Christ did not win men's hearts merely because he knew God. He also knew men. On his imagination he went out into other lives—into tragic, hopeless, vicious lives, and shared their misery and despair. So came his power over men.

Try to think of imagination in that way.

Stop thinking of it as a frivolous, fanciful thing—day-dreaming. Think of it as a dynamo—the most powerful dynamo in your equipment, which will project your life into the stars if you use it rightly.

But always you must use it rightly. It isn't enough to dream and desire, any more than it is enough to start a plane's propeller and watch the air go around. You must fuel your imagination with knowledge and purpose—you must get your bearings and hold to your course—you must face risk and hardship in your plunge through the clouds.

Start developing your imagination today. You envy others their success. Stop envying. Project yourself into those other lives. Don't do a tail spin of pity as soon as you see how much more they have than you. Consider their difficulties—explore their tactics and their tastes. Wouldn't you get on faster if you adopted some of those tactics of tastes?

Then turn your imagination on yourself. Try to see yourself as others see you without any excuses or alibis. Quite a different view, isn't it? But that's what imagination will do for you, if you have the courage to use it.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

IT IS easy to start on the upward trail, there is joy in its early days; but soon, how soon, do the spirits fail as men question the unknown ways! For high hopes falter and dreams grow dim in the stress of the weary climb, as the struggle seems endless, the effort grim; so they turn, in a little time, away from the grind of a wearing quest which their faint hearts soon forgo; but the man who stays, he will do his best no matter what winds may blow! There is tribute paid to the man who dares, grasping fame in one swift embrace, and often the glory the hero wears may be won in an instant's space. But only the heart that is brave and true fights on through the long, dark days, and the highest honors of life are due to the strength of the man who stays!
